U.S. REJECTS PLEA TO END H-BOMB TESTS

WASHINGTON (UP)—Secretary of State John Foster Dulles today rejected suggestions by Russia and India that the United States suspend future H-bomb tests.

India's United Nations delegate, V. K. Krishna Menon, Tuesday appealed for the United States and Russia to ban experimental H-blasts. The United States has been reported planning to set off a super H-blast in the Pacific this year.

PRIVATE BILL IN COMMONS

Recognize China Philpott Urges

OTTAWA (CP)—A Liberal member of Parliament urges that the government consider recognition of the Communist regime in China.

Elmore Philpott, member for Vancouver South, has placed a resolution on the Commons order paper which says "that in the opinion of this House, the government should consider the advisability of recognizing the present government of China, and taking all other steps to promote trade between Canada and Asia."

Mr. Philpott's resolution is about halfway down the list of resolutions proposed for Commons consideration and may not be called for debate for some time.

STATEMENT RECALLED

The most recent statement on recognition of Red China by a member of the government was made last month by External Affairs Minister Pearson in an article in Look, American weekly magazine. He said: "We should recognize the fact that the Peiping government, and not Chiang Kai-shek, is in control of continental China and likely to remain so; that there are basic problems to be settled in the Far East which cannot be settled without the participation and agreement of that government."

"We can negotiate with Peiping when necessary and desirable without implying approval of that regime or without weakening our opposition to Communism."

In August, Mr. Pearson said in a speech at Vancouver that Canada must soon take a new and searching look at the question of recognition.

Miami Shivers As Temperature Takes Dip to 42

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Ice winds from a gigantic storm off the coast of Virginia continued to howl over southeast Florida today.

Residents bundled up and sought any type of heating unit on the market.

Miami's high Tuesday was 67 degrees. A low of 42 was reported Tuesday morning.

If the area does not warm up before Sunday, as predicted, it will be Miami's longest cold spell since 1918.

Rail Hearings Start Monday

MONTREAL (CP)—The three-man conciliation board appointed by the federal government to deal with a contract dispute between the railways and 150,000 non-operating employees, will begin hearings in Montreal next Monday, it was announced today.

Eric G. Taylor, chairman of the board, said the hearings, to be held here and in Ottawa, should take 10 days or two weeks.

Killed by Arabs

LONDON (AP)—The war office said today a British colonel was shot and killed by Arab rioting during the week-end at Zerga, headquarters of the Arab Legion in Jordan.

The dead Briton was identified as Lt. Col. Patrick Lloyd, 42, commanding the 4th Light Anti-Aircraft Regiment.

4-MAN BOARD TO RULE INDUSTRY

Quebec 'Conscripts' Newsprint; Duplessis Orders Stiff Controls

QUEBEC (CP)—Canada's biggest industry—newsprint manufacturing—is to come under government control in Quebec for defying Premier Duplessis, it was announced Tuesday night.

Quebec newsprint manufacturers, 55 mills in all and producing more than half Canada's total newsprint output, are to be placed under the control of a four-man board with vast powers over production, distribution and sale of newsprint.

The reason for their silent refusal to comply with Premier Duplessis' request Dec. 13 last that they exempt Quebec newspapers publishers from recent newsprint price increases of $4 a ton.

Mr. Duplessis announced in a press conference during the legislative assembly's supper adjournment that he is going ahead with his plans to put the companies under provincial control no matter what they now decide.

FIXED UNTIL 1957*
The law would stipulate that the newsprint price be fixed at the September 1955 level until a date, still undetermined, is reached.

1957, Quebec publishers have been paying between $117 and $119 a ton for newsprint since 1952 under an arrangement worked out at that time by Mr. Duplessis and the manufacturers.

Moreover, Mr. Duplessis said, compliance with the new law will be an indispensable condition to the companies' right to hold government leases on Quebec's crown forests.

Most of the newsprint produced in Quebec comes from pulpwood cut in publicly-owned forests.

HEAVY PENALTIES
Penalties will range from $25,000 for first offences to $50,000 and $100,000 for any subsequent infringement of any regulation in the control law, the premier said.

As a first blow he started the ball rolling Tuesday with a drastic tax measure against one of the largest Quebec newsprint manufacturers.

Anglo Canadian Pulp and Paper Mills Ltd. of Quebec City is to see its municipal and school taxes increased, retroactive by one year, to $108,000 annually, and its tax bill may still

Totem Lift Poses Ticklish Problem

Experts are wracking their brains today on the next phase of "operation tallest totem."

It is the ticklish job of lifting the nine-ton cedar tree out of the Inner Harbor, over the Causeway and transporting it to the Thunderbird Park carving shed.

This will be done within the next two or three days. The time will be fixed to conform with traffic and other civic arrangements.

The job has been undertaken by Heaney (Big or Teeny) Cartage and Storage Company. And in the words of the firm's head, William Heaney, "it comes under the classification 'big'."

It will be at least a four-hour job, according to preliminary estimates.

City authorities today gave full co-operation in ensuring the success of the difficult lift.

go up after the city carries out another evaluation of the company's property.

Mr. Duplessis accused president Elliott Little of Anglo of increasing the price of newsprint $3 a ton after he first gave warning that he was against the boost for Quebec newspapers.

Even after his Dec. 13 final warning, Mr. Duplessis said, the Anglo president fell in line with other newsprint firms and fixed his company's increase at $4 a ton.

Mr. Duplessis said later about his measure against Anglo: "This should be a warning to all other companies."

Mr. Little could not be reached to comment on Mr. Duplessis' statement and the new legislative measure against his company.

Lost Plane, Men Found on Island

CHILD FIRE DEATHS HIT 20 IN 10 WEEKS

OTTAWA (CP)—Five children died today in a fire which swept through a two-storey frame home in the capital's west end.

The dead: Margaret, 7; Barbara Jean, 4; Garry, 3; Sharon, 17 months, and Wayne, six weeks, children of Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Roud of Northwestern ave.

The mother and Frank, 5, escaped and were taken to hospital for treatment for shock and burns. The father was at work when the fire broke out.

The tragedy raises to 28 the number of persons who have died in fires in the Ottawa district since Nov. 1, 20 of them children.

Better Tax Deal Offered by PM

Bigger Share for Provinces In Corporation Tax Field

OTTAWA (CP)—The federal government has yielded slightly to the provinces, agreeing to hand over a bigger share of the corporation tax field under a proposed, new five-year tax-sharing formula to replace current, tax rental agreements.

Terms of the formula, already in the hands of the provinces, were disclosed today by Prime Minister St. Laurent when he tabled in the Commons copies of letters he sent to the premiers Jan. 6.

The formula is virtually unchanged from that originally suggested at the Oct. 3 federal-provincial conference with the exception of the corporation tax allowance. In that case the deduction allowable on federal payments will increase to nine from 8½ percent of a corporation's taxable income.

In other cases the federal deductions allowable where provinces return to the direct tax field will be 10 per cent of the federal tax on personal incomes—excluding the two per cent old age security tax—and 50 per cent of the federal duty on successions.

The formula, designed as an alternative to the current federal-provincial tax rental pacts which expire in March, 1957, are linked to federal equalization payments to the less wealthy provinces.

There will be no strings attached to these equalization payments. They will go to all provinces.

They will be based on the difference between direct tax yields in each province on a per capita basis and the two wealthiest provinces—Ontario and British Columbia.

"These equalization payments would be paid during each fiscal year commencing April 1, 1957, and would be calculated on the basis of the tax and population figures for the preceding taxation year," Mr. St. Laurent said in his letter.

MP Accused Of Bribery
OTTAWA (CP)—Fred L. Prickett, unsuccessful Independent Social Credit candidate in last September's federal by-election in Restigouche-Madawaska, has accused the Progressive Conservative victor, J. C. Van Horne, of bribing a voter with a drink.

Mr. Van Horne, who took his seat Tuesday in the Commons, denied the charge.

The accusation is contained in a letter written by Mr. Prickett to chief electoral officer Nelson J. Castonguay. The letter was tabled in the Commons by Speaker Rene Beaudin.

Mr. Prickett's letter accused Mr. Van Horne of giving a drink to a voter outside a polling station on the morning of the by-election. He said this was contrary to the Canada Elections Act.

Four Safe, Unhurt When Craft Downed On West Coast

Four men rescued when their Pacific Western Airlines plane flipped over on an island 160 miles northwest of here after being missing a day were reported "in excellent physical shape" by a PWA spokesman in Vancouver today.

The plane, a Cessna 180, was sighted upside down shortly after 10 a.m. It had been missing since Tuesday on a 130-mile flight from Port Alberni to Gold River.

Aboard were Capt. Jim Lightbown of Vancouver, pilot, William Craig, 46, and Charles Rowlands of Vancouver, and Gene Olson, 42, of Seattle.

Cause of the accident is not yet known, the company spokesman told The Times. Necessary salvage steps will be taken to bring out the wrecked plane.

The foursome was taken first to Zeballos, and from there left for Vancouver at noon today aboard another PWA plane.

It was first feared the plane was down with possible loss of life.

FLIPPED OVER
The plane flipped over on Bligh Island at the entrance to Murchat Sound on Vancouver Island's rugged west coast.

A B.C. Air Lines and three PWA planes searched the area early today, while another 10 planes stood by.

"She was down in the area we thought they most probably would have crashed," a search and rescue officer said.

The Cessna, chartered at Port Alberni by Dietrich-Collins, Ltd., equipment firm, was found before heavy clouds and rain blanketed the coast.

A land search party had also started out from Port Alberni to aid in combing through heavily wooded country.

Mr. Olson, aboard the plane, is a nephew of city businessman H. B. Barney Olson and R. S. Olson. He is service manager for the Pacific Northwest and B.C. of the Lima Steam Shovel Co. and has been a frequent visitor to Victoria.

TUGS STAND BY
Two Island Tug & Barge towboats in the general vicinity stood by to lend assistance if needed.

While details of the accident are still slim, pending report of the flight captain to PWA, a company spokesman said he did not believe plane damage was as serious as first reported by radio.

"I can't feature a plane being wrecked and the four aboard walking easily away," the PWA official said. "It seems like an ordinary flip-over to me. We do not consider it serious."

Flood Areas
HALIFAX (CP)—More than 1,000 were homeless today as flooding Nova Scotia rivers rolled on to the sea with ever-growing destruction.

Property damage mounted hourly. It was in the tens of millions after a week of melting snow, rain, sleet and gales.

Floodwaters dropped a little in the province's central and eastern counties. But they continued to rise alarmingly along the southern shore.

Another 300 persons fled their homes Tuesday after a three-inch rainfall sent the waters higher still, bursting a score of dams.

Residents of the new Germany Pinehurst area of Lunenburg county today anxiously watched the Sherbrooke dam on the Lahave river where water was pouring 12 inches over the top and through a fault in the west end.

Authorities said persons living within a 10-mile area below the dam would be endangered should it give way and send a 30-foot wall of water crashing through the river valley as far as Bridgewater.

PRAYER FOR TODAY
OUR GOD, forgive our pride in virtues easily achieved, as when companionship with a joyful father endowed us unconsciously with a love for work. Pardon our avoidance of virtues hard to gain, such as a patient understanding of why others sin. Empower us to leave partial goodness behind so as to press forward to the greater ahead; through Christ. Amen.

Shackleton's Antarctic Camp Still Intact

ROSS ISLAND, Antarctica (AP)—The base camp used by Ernest Shackleton, the first man to come to the South Pole, still stands here at the foot of Mount Erebus, on a little hollowed-out shelf, over the frozen ice of McMurdo Sound.

It is 47 years since Shackleton made his gallant attempt. Forced to turn back 85 miles short of his goal, he and his parties did notable exploratory and scientific work in the Antarctic.

Looking over his camp almost half a century later gives one the sensation of a macabre movie that has stopped suddenly, with all action and life frozen in the last motion.

The wooden hut, about 40 by 20 feet, has whitened over the years, but is still in good condition. Cables criss-crossing over its peak anchor it against the violent Antarctic winds. It stands on a slight rise overlooking a saucer-shaped area.

In the centre of the saucer is a small pond, unfrozen since it is well protected. Black volcanic ash where nothing ever grew rings it.

Behind the hut rises an overwhelming white pyramid all the way up to 13,000 feet—the only active volcano in the Antarctic. Scattered around the huts are cans, bales and boxes. Some are half open, chewed away by skua gulls. They contain hams, soup, marrow, fat, corn kernels, concentrated fruits and other foodstuffs for man and beast. Those that are unopened are still edible.

Some are marked "British Antarctic expedition 1908."

It was on that first expedition that Shackleton jumped off from here for the pole, using Manchurian drag sledges along the 800-mile route. The heavy leather straps by which the ponies were once held still lie on the volcanic ash.

Inside the hut are three sections—a large general sleeping and cooking area, a private room for the leader and a photographer's darkroom.

Crates of fruit in jars make the darkroom wall. A canvas curtain sets off the kitchen. All but one window is intact.

In the darkroom are a few photographic plates. Wrapped in paper on the floor is a well preserved three-foot king penguin. Hanging on metal hooks from the ceiling are a ham and a side of bacon—not well preserved.

Also about are 1907 copies of "Punch," several pairs of sharp-pointed boots and boxes of candies marked "for tropical use."

Over all hangs the silence of the Antarctic, broken only by squawking from a small penguin rookery at the seaside. Overhead the ugly skua, gulls wait like vultures to pounce on the penguins.

KNOW YOUR TEACHER

In the belief that parents of children attending schools in the Greater Victoria area are interested in knowing about personalities of the teachers who educate them, The Times today starts a series on "Know Your Teacher." The articles will appear three times a week. The Teachers' Federation is co-operating.

Donald G. Macdonald, vice-principal and senior boys' counsellor at Lansdowne Junior High School, has spent his entire teaching career on Vancouver Island.

He was born in Moose Jaw, Sask., where he began public school, but while still in the lower grades moved with his family to Vancouver, becoming a Magee High School graduate in the early 1930s.

SEEKING DEGREE

Meanwhile, he began summer school courses at UBC, from which he earned his BA in 1948. He is now working toward his B.E.D. and has taken summer courses in advanced counselling.

From 1941-43 Mr. Macdonald taught at Central Junior High School, then joined the RCAF to serve as a radio and electronics technician at Defence Research Board's experimental station, Suffield, Alta.

SOCIAL STUDIES

In 1945 he returned to Central Junior High, where he was posted until Lansdowne School opened in 1954. His subjects are social studies and mathematics, but he has also been active in general supervisory work, organizing and audio-visual aids.

Mr. Macdonald is married and lives at 1857 Hollywood Crescent. His wife, Irene, was a school teacher, and they have two children, Ian, 4½, and Julie, one year.

Mr. Macdonald is active in Family and Children's Service, of which he is a director. Fishing, gardening and home handiwork are his hobbies.

Teacher Wins Reinstatement By Cabinet

Asks Return To Old School

Industrial arts teacher Geoffrey D'Arcy, re-instated by the B.C. cabinet Tuesday, said today he was ready to go back to the classrooms.

"I will write to the school board and ask for instructions," he said.

Mr. D'Arcy was dismissed by Greater Victoria School Board last summer for alleged "impertinence and gross insubordination" in a letter criticizing selection of applicants to teaching jobs.

An appeal, prolonged over several months, was won by Mr. D'Arcy. The cabinet, sitting as a council of public instruction, ruled against the dismissal.

"He is still an employee of the board and must be re-instated," said Dr. Harold L. Campbell, deputy minister of education.

Mr. D'Arcy must get retroactive pay.

"For this decision one can only be deeply grateful on grounds of the general educational principles of teacher responsibility for a maintained lively interest in the system and of democratic principles," said Mr. D'Arcy.

CREDIT TO ALL

He said it must be a comfort to the public to see these principles upheld. He said it was a credit to the board of reference, the minister, deputy minister and cabinet that the matter could have been aired so freely and "considered so rationally and justly."

"May democracy and responsible independent thinking ever be a fundamental and active part of our educational system," he stated.

School board chairman W. H. Golby said: "We will have to see where we stand now. It will be a bit of a shock to us. We'll discuss it at the board meeting on Monday."

Mr. D'Arcy took his fight before the board of reference last August without counsel but later was represented by J. Alan Baker.

The re-instated teacher said he would like to return to Lansdowne Junior High School, where he was teaching when the dismissal took place.

VANCOUVER (CP)—The 42-year-old police station will be demolished, City Council decided here Tuesday. A new station was completed recently on adjacent property. The new premises are the sixth in Vancouver's history.

School Inoculations Up 900% in 3 Years

Greater Victoria school immunization program has extended almost 900 per cent in the past three years, Victoria-Esquamalt Medical Health Officer Dr. Elizabeth Mahaffey reported Tuesday.

She told a meeting of the Union Board of Health that in 1953, 1,243 inoculations were given, in 1954 3,532, and in 1955 10,583, including Salk vaccine shots.

She said the health unit wants every student leaving school to have his immunization program complete.

Schools at present can't provide immunization against diphtheria, tetanus, small pox, typhoid and measles.

RECALL DOSES: Salk vaccine, when it arrives here, will be distributed for inoculation of about 4,500 youngsters in grades three, four, five and six with recall doses for those in grade one who received Salk shots last year, the doctor said.

The board meeting re-elected Esquamalt councillor G. K. Sammon as chairman and welcomed city alderman Mrs. Lily Wilson to membership.

Happy Chew Dang, 84, Wants No Age Pension

A jolly little Chinese with a moon face and the politest possible manner visited The Times today to explain why, despite his 84 years, he isn't interested in the old age pension.

Mr. Chew Dang, West Saanich Road, has been running an advertisement in the paper the past couple of weeks, thanking people for pointing out he is eligible for the pension, and advising he "does not wish to apply for same."

His English is not of the best, but his bright and happy manner conveys the idea. These are his words: "No like something for nothing."

China-born Mr. Dang has lived here 48 years and for many of them has been growing potatoes. He has six acres on West Saanich Road, which he works most of the time himself. "Some time somebody help me."

"I make, when market good, and no steal-um, maybe 500 dolla."

Mr. Dang said he had a good crop in 1954 and sold 130 sacks to the marketing board. "I sell 130 sack, and for 22 sack they no pay me."

"He put my money in pocket," said Mr. Dang with a pocketing gesture and a broad smile.

Sometimes he lives by himself and sometimes with sons and daughters in the area.

But apart from his complaint about the marketing board, the gray-haired Chinese seems about as happy as anyone his age can be.

"Oh yes, feel good. Maybe get good crop this year, no can tell," he said grinning.

Of the old age pension he was emphatic: "I no touchem."

MRS. BUTT GIVES IN

CHEQUERS, England (Reuters)—Mrs. Maud Butt's weekly washing, which fluttered defiantly under the irate eye of the prime minister's wife, will hang no more.

At least, not in full view of Chequers, officials country residence of Sir Anthony Eden.

Mrs. Butt, a farmhand's wife, capitulated to an urgent request from Lady Eden. Henceforth, her wash will dry far from the windows of the ministerial mansion.

Earlier, Mrs. Butt had refused to budge.

Tories Report Success From Unity Meeting

VANCOUVER (CP)—Some success was reported from a meeting here Tuesday of federal and provincial representatives designed to reunite the Progressive Conservative Party in British Columbia.

It was not disclosed, however, whether the provincial Conservatives were willing to withdraw the "want of confidence" motion in national leader George Drew, which caused the rift between the two factions.

The non-confidence motion was passed by the executive of the B.C. Conservative Association at Vernon in July, 1954. Federal MPs led a walkout of their supporters.

It was understood federal Conservatives suggested Tuesday the anti-Drew motion should be withdrawn by provincial members in the interests of harmony.

A report issued from two committees said merely, however, they "met in a spirit of good will" and discussed unity.

Chairman of the group representing the federal council was Leon Ladner, Harrison Stewart Smith of Kelowna, president of the B.C. Conservative Association, was chairman of the provincial group.

Night Class On Weather Has Openings

Three night classes sponsored by Victoria College Evening Division start tonight.

Last-minute registration will be accepted at the college for Conversational German, and Meet the Weatherman. The third course, Fundamentals of Photography has a full class.

Lectures begin at 8 p.m., but registration starts at 7.30 p.m.

College officials said registration has been heavy for most courses. Comparative Religions opened Tuesday with 75 enrolled.

Conversational German will continue for 12 weeks, each Wednesday under instruction of Gordon L. Tracy, assistant professor of German at the college.

Meet the Weatherman, also a series of 12 lectures, is given by Victoria meteorologist William Mackie.

Lewis J. Clark, professor of chemistry at the college, will conduct 15 sessions on photography.

Vancouver Heliport in False Creek?

VANCOUVER (CP)—Reclaiming part of False Creek to provide Vancouver with more industrial land and eventually a helicopter landing field is considered possible by engineers.

City engineer John Oliver and Toronto consulting engineer E. L. Cousins, however, submitted a report to city council Monday saying that the cost of completely filling the channel which cuts through the industrial heart of the city would not be worth while. The cost would be about $50,000,000 but the new land created would be worth only between $8,000,000 and $9,000,000.

At present, the engineers said, 12 acres could be economically reclaimed for use by industry and helicopters; the remaining 120 acres could not.

Gals Who Wear Corsets Tough On Lie Detectors

CHICAGO (AP)—The 96 female employees of the Cook county Chicago board of election commissioners were asked today not to wear corsets to work on specified days in the next couple of weeks.

The reason is that all members of the board's staff are being given lie detector tests in an effort to find out what happened to two missing vote registration cards. And corsets sometimes foul up such tests by interfering with the detector's measurement of the breathing rate.

B.C. Fruitmen Call For Royal Commission

Penticton growers, who met Tuesday, favored the royal commission inquiry.

MONTREAL, January 12—I love to cook... but don't have much time, as I'm at the office all day. That's why I find LIPTON'S SOUPS such a blessing—so quick and easy to use as soups—or to bring a rich flavor to family favorites in a matter of seconds. For instance, everyone loves Chili Con Carne—try it with Lipton's Tomato Vegetable Soup added!

TV CHILI CON CARNE

1 tsp. cooking fat or butter
1/2 lb. ground beef
1/2 tsp. chili powder
1 quart red kidney beans
12 lb. cans

Melt the fat and add chopped onion and meat. Cook till meat has browned. Add boiling water and stir in Lipton's Tomato Vegetable Soup and chili powder. Cover and cook 10 mins. Add red kidney beans. Simmer 5 mins. Serves 6.

You Lucky People... in this lovely province you can serve BLUE BONNET MARGARINE in all its golden goodness—as a spread for bread, muffins or crackers—or melting deliciously on your vegetables. Blue Bonnet is winning still more enthusiastic now that it's super-homogenized for extra spreadability.

... spreads on the freshest bread, easily, even when it's ice-box cold. Only pure vegetable oils and pasteurized skim milk are used for Blue Bonnet—with essential vitamins added to every pound. Buy it in the De Luxe foil-wrapped quarters, or the 2-pound economy package.

While You're Making Them—those Resolutions—here's a good one to make and keep. Don't be bothered any more with the "Nasal Catarrh" which results so often from dry nostrils. The moment you get that stuffy feeling in your nose spread a little MENTHOLATUM inside each nostril and sniff well back... It's so comforting to feel the relief of Mentholum's medicated vapors on irritated membranes. Your nostrils will feel clearer... you'll breathe more easily. Send for a FREE, GENEROUS sample of this fine product. Do so now! Write Confidentially Yours: H.H. Greenstein, St. Montreal. I'd like you to try Mentholum for yourself!

Every Saturday Morning... I make the rounds, and put DRANO in the laundry tubs.

the sink... the wash basins and bathtubs. Like thousands of other housewives I've learned what a wise precaution this is. For Drano has a special, boiling action which dissolves and flushes away waste matter—something no liquid disinfectant or javal water can do. It's this special quality in Drano that keeps the drains running free—and eliminates the nuisance of clogged pipes. It doesn't harm septic tanks—makes them work even better! A tablespoon of Drano in each drain will keep them free-running and germ-free. Costs about a cent a drain. Start using Drano regularly today!

Alongside The African Violet... in my kitchen window sits a bottle of Campana's ITALIAN BALM—ready for use the minute I've finished the dishes. The household size Italian Balm with the convenient new dispenser releases exactly the right amount on your hands... both for only 6¢. A quick thumb pressure gives you the little you need... rub it vigorously into your busy hands after every exposure to work—water—weather. There's no twisting—no turning to seal the bottle. No leaking. No fuss! Italian Balm is a favorite at drug counters, everywhere.

I'm So Thankful... I learned about that fine product PINEX! It is so comforting to have Pinex in the house—for at the very first sign of a cough—it brings really fast relief. There's always a risk in letting a cough take hold—and there's nothing more irritating than the rasping, hacking, hoarseness which usually accompanies one. Pinex has such a pleasant taste that it's no trouble to get children to take it... Use Prepared Pinex cough syrup... or for economy, you can use Pinex Concentrate to make 16 ounces of cough syrup with honey or syrup. Don't let cough be a part of your winter scene—use Pinex!

'PORGY AND BESS' WOWS MOSCOW OPERA LOVERS

MOSCOW (AP)—An overflow Russian audience wept, cheered and stood up applauded for 8½ minutes Tuesday night at Moscow's opening performance of "Porgy and Bess."

It was another warm Soviet reception for the touring American troupe that gave its first performance in Russia at Leningrad on Dec. 26.

Most Russians couldn't follow the dialogue of the opera by George Gershwin and Dubose Heyward, but the music and color of the moving Negro tale hit home.

As the lights went on at the end, everyone in the audience stood up, many of them with tear-stained faces.

Woman Opens Commons Debate

Speeches by Party Chiefs Scheduled for Thursday

BUP and CP Dispatches

OTTAWA—The only woman Liberal member of Parliament kicks off the first big debate of the new session this afternoon and Parliament settles down to a streamlined 5½-month session.

Mrs. Ann Shipley (L.—Temiskaming), a veteran of municipal politics in northern Ontario, now serving her first term in Commons, will establish a record in parliamentary history when she moves the formal address in reply to the Speech from the Throne with which Governor-General Vincent Massey opened the new session in a brilliant ceremony Tuesday.

Mrs. Shipley, elected in 1933, is the only woman on the government side of the chamber. There are three opposite her in the Conservative party ranks. She was expected to speak especially about northern Ontario mining problems. Today's second speaker will be Ovide Lafontaine, Liberal member for Bellechasse, Que.

1956 Election Still Possible

The legislative program of the new session does not rule out the possibility of a 1956 general election, but it closes the door on hopes for any substantial 1956 tax cuts.

That is the consensus among veteran members of Parliament of all parties who have given careful overnight analysis to the Speech from the Throne.

Opposition leader George Drew, Prime Minister Louis St. Laurent, CCF leader M. J. Coldwell, and acting Social Credit leader E. G. Hansell will speak in that order Thursday, making their first major policy pronouncements of the session.

Opposition leader Drew received a non-committal reply Tuesday when he asked the government to table draft agreements dealing with federal participation in construction of a natural gas pipeline through northern Ontario.

Mr. Drew, noting a reference to the project in the throne speech, asked Prime Minister St. Laurent to table copies of draft agreements involved.

Mr. St. Laurent replied he would find out whether the draft agreements can be tabled.

The throne speech confirmed a previous federal announcement of financial assistance for the difficult northern Ontario section of the $350,000,000 line from Alberta to the east.

The federal and Ontario governments would build the $118,000,000 northern section between the Manitoba border and Kapuskasing, Ont., and lease it through a crown company to Trans-Canada Pipe Lines Ltd.

Cold, Mishap Mar Ceremonies

After Tuesday afternoon's formal opening ceremonies in the Senate, the Commons held a brief sitting in its own chamber. Mr. St. Laurent introduced four new Liberal members, and Drew introduced two recently-elected Conservatives.

Tributes were paid to Alcide Cote, late postmaster-general, whose death during the summer cut short a budding career in the cabinet.

Mr. Massey's arrival at the Centre Block for the opening of Parliament was one of the most colorful affairs in the capital in postwar years. But it was marred by uncertain weather; a cold wind and an incident in which an RCMP horse crashed through a public barrier.

Mr. Massey, in plumed hat and silver-braided court uniform, and his viceregal party drove from Government House in an open horse-drawn landau. The procession was led by a police motorcycle escort and RCMP constable and officers on black horses.

About 3,000 people lined the route of the procession. The horse broke the barrier after a dog nipped its hoofs and caused it to slip, sending its rider scrambling. However, nobody was hurt and the rider remounted after catching the horse.

The ceremonies were televised, and to make for a better picture for the television cam-

Wheat Aid Details Outlined by Howe

OTTAWA (CP)—The government plans to have the treasury bear the cost of storage charges on all wheat held by the wheat board in excess of 178,000,000 bushels. Payments are to be based on holdings at the start of the current crop year, Aug. 1, 1955.

Trade Minister Howe disclosed this today as he initiated parliamentary machinery on the storage payment proposal and legislation dealing with federal guarantees on bank loans for farm-held grain. Notice of resolutions on both proposals were given in today's Commons order paper, the first of the session.

FARM LOANS BOOSTED

At the same time Finance Minister Harris gave notice of plans for Farm Loan Act changes, to boost maximum loans on first mortgages to $15,000 from $10,000. The farm loan board would be able to make loans up to 65 per cent of the value of the farm lands, a boost from the previous ceiling of 60 per cent.

There are no indications in the notice of whether the board will continue to make loans on second mortgages. Currently it can lend up to $2,000 on second mortgages.

It appears likely loans on second mortgages will be discontinued when the expanded first-mortgage loans go into operation.

Biggest federal concession to the Prairie farmers is the wheat storage payment plan. Up to now, Prairie farmers paid all storage costs. The amount of wheat in storage has been rising in the last few years because of bumper crops and slow marketings.

On Aug. 1, 1955, the wheat board held about 380,000,000 bushels of wheat. The treasury will pay on that portion "owned" by the wheat board in excess of 178,000,000 bushels. Perhaps a small portion of the 300,000,000 bushels held by the board was actually sold.

ON 200,000,000 BUSHELS

All told, federal payments may be made on about 200,000,000 bushels of surplus wheat. Storage costs have been estimated unofficially at between 10 and 15 cents a bushel. In addition, the government will pay interest charges involved and thus the storage charge to the treasury taxpayers this year may total about $20,000,000.

Previous indications were that federal guarantees for bank loans on farm-held prairie grain would cover only the current crop year. But Mr. Howe asked in his notice for power to have the guarantees

The Speech From the Throne

THE CANADIAN GOVERNMENT'S speech from the Throne suggests a pretty routine session of Parliament. Parliament, however, does not always adhere to the Government's agenda. Political manoeuvres are not mentioned in the Governor-General's opening address but they will doubtless dominate the proceedings from now until summer.

The only major departure in Government policy now forecast is a rather clumsy plan to assist the prairie farmers. Clearly the Government has changed its mind about the wheat surplus.

Having refused the prairie farmers a direct subsidy and compelled them to borrow money at the banks, the Government is now proposing an indirect subsidy, slightly disguised. If the plan now under discussion is finally adopted, the national treasury will pay part of the farmers' storage charges in the glutted elevators.

These charges, when wheat remains long in storage, are heavy. The Government does not propose, of course, to pay all of them, but it would pay the cost of storing wheat over what is considered a "normal" amount.

At the moment it is suggested that the payment cover 200 million bushels and this would cost the treasury about $30 millions a year. Whatever it may be called in official language, this can be nothing but a subsidy to a particular industry, just as if the Government paid part of the operating costs of some other industry. And it would certainly represent a retreat from the Government's original refusal to grant any subsidy.

Few Canadians will doubt that the grain producers are entitled to assistance from the state when the state takes over their grain through an exclusive selling agency and fails to sell it. But, as the Winnipeg Free Press observes, this particular scheme would give the farmers no worthwhile assistance.

An average farmer who harvested, say, 3,000 bushels last autumn, could look forward to a payment of $180 from the Government some months hence. That would not cover a fraction of the cost of operating a farm. The disguised subsidy, The Free Press says, would be about as useful as a water pistol against a forest fire. It would put the farmer in the position of receiving a hand-out from the taxpayers without touching the real problem, which is a grain surplus.

Until now the government has insisted, through Mr. Howe, that the surplus is temporary. If so, the cost of storing grain is also temporary and represents a small cost to the individual farmer. The plan to charge part of that cost to the state makes sense only if the surplus is to last for some years. In that case much more fundamental remedies will be required. In the meantime the new plan can be construed only as a sop, and a most inadequate one, to the farmers.

They have a case for much better treatment. Under the law they are compelled to sell all their grain to a government agency, the Wheat Board. They are not paid at all until the Wheat Board takes possession of the grain and not fully until the grain is finally sold at the price fixed by the Government. They have no control over their own business, once they have harvested their fields.

Under these conditions they are entitled to say that if the Government monopolizes their wheat they should be paid for it as soon as it is harvested. The Government does not know, at harvest time, what price the wheat will bring and therefore cannot make a full payment to the farmer. But it could make a partial payment, gauged by the going price, and then, after selling the grain, could pay the balance, if any, to the farmer.

That is the logical end of the existing government monopoly system and it seems certain that the farmers will not be satisfied with any other settlement.

Such an arrangement, while solving the farmer's immediate problem, does not solve the national problem. It does nothing to reduce the surplus. It really means lending public money to the farmers until the Government sells the crop, but it avoids the need of a subsidy.

In the long run nothing can save Government, farmer or public from the world market, in which most of our cereals must be sold. If the world price drops, so must our income from agriculture, however we disguise or redistribute it. If we are growing more cereals than the market can ever buy, then we shall have to reduce our output.

It is much too early, however, to say that. A change of growing weather, a general reduction in the yield of the world's wheat farms, could end the present surplus very quickly. In the last few days, indeed, our wheat sales have suddenly increased.

The Boom Continues

EXCEPT FOR RESIDENTS WHO live in the new suburban areas, where whole streets of homes are going up overnight, the impact of Greater Victoria's building boom may not have been particularly noticed. But the figures show that this community is well up with the construction boom that is sweeping British Columbia and especially Vancouver Island.

New homes, schools, shops and industrial premises in Greater Victoria totalled more than $18 millions last year. Major projects already scheduled for 1956 will amount to more than $6 millions.

All sections of the area have shared in the activity. As early as last November, Saanich and Esquimalt building figures had exceeded all previous records. Victoria and Oak Bay were about $1.5 millions ahead of 1954.

The Saanich figures in particular were sensational, with more than $6.3 millions represented in nearly 1,200 building permits. This sum is nearly one-third more than in 1953 and '54, and nearly twice as much as in other recent years. Victoria city recorded more than $8 millions in construction last year.

But plans for expansion in the coming months are equally imposing.

As noted in the news columns last week, the community will see work commence on the $1 million Queen Alexandra Solarium at Gordon Head. New construction and alterations to the old post office building will amount to some $800,000; the Bank of Montreal building at Yates and Douglas will account for $500,000 and the Simpson-Sears development in the Lansdowne area will equal this sum.

A new Hudson's Bay Company warehouse is estimated at $750,000. School construction will total well over $500,000, while new church buildings will add $350,000 to the total. Apartment houses now projected will total nearly $500,000. In addition there are numerous projects which still require final decisions: a new Royal Jubilee Hospital wing, the Art Centre wing, and others.

Such development spells jobs, not only for the building trades but in many associated activities. In the case of commercial and industrial building, the investments represent still more. They mean that the owners see greater business opportunities in this community, a need for expansion of present facilities, and that they are prepared to risk their capital in furthering this prosperity. It will be up to Greater Victoria to show that such confidence is justified.

Invitation to London

THE ONE HUNDREDTH ANNIVERSARY of the foundation of the Victoria Cross is being observed this month. Next June, a rally of all holders of this supreme decoration will be held in London, an epic occasion of great historic interest.

The Victoria Cross occupies a unique place among Commonwealth decorations. By the express wish of the great Queen whose name it bears, it has no intrinsic value: it is made in a simple design of bronze and would be valued at no more than five cents.

But as a military honor it takes priority over any decoration or title the Queen can bestow. It bears only two words: "For Valour," and it can be won in only one way—by outstanding bravery in battle.

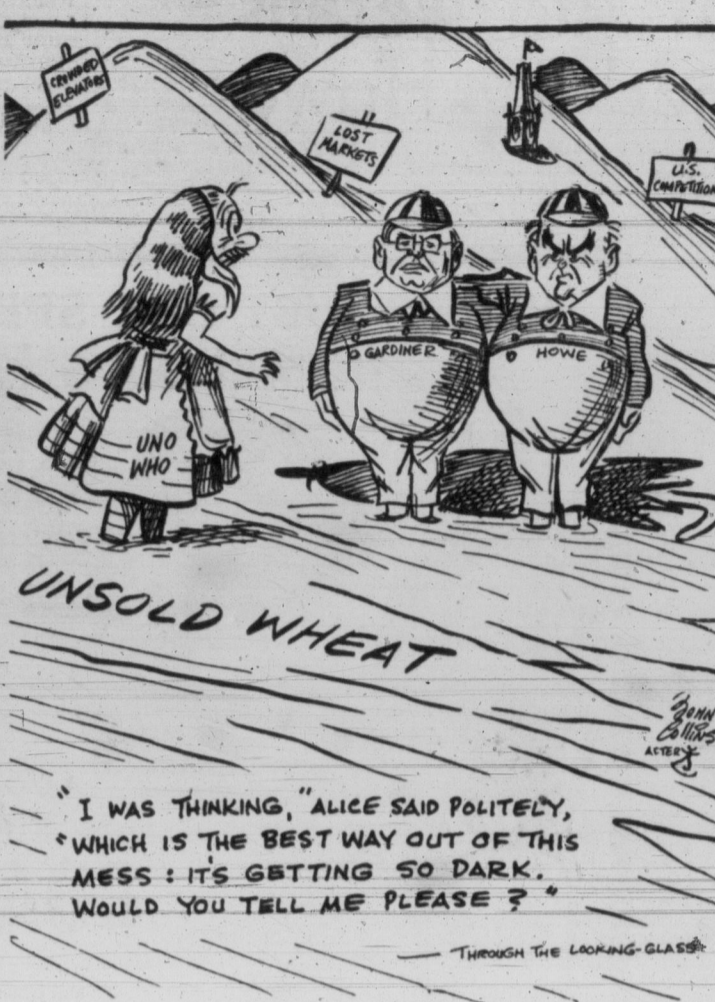

Up to the end of the Korean War, 1,343 Victoria Crosses had been won, more than one-third of them by men who died in the winning. Rank or race or position, of course, have no part in the awards. The majority of VC winners have been privates or seamen, although some later gained commissions.

In this connection, a question is raised regarding the celebrations of next June. Since most of the holders of the VC are men of modest means, an invitation to London is a somewhat hollow honor if there is very little chance of the invited guest undertaking the long journey. It would be a generous gesture, and a well-merited one, if the Canadian Government were to assist Canada's Victoria Cross holders to make the trip by supplying RCAF transportation.

Generals, admirals and air commodores must salute the VC, even though it is worn by a private. This would be an opportunity for the people of Canada, through their Government, to salute in a very practical way these men, who have won the highest British military honor it is possible to win.

Tweedledum and Tweedle C.D.

Chips

BY DAVID BROCK

WHAT a silly-looking word is Wednesday. I am ashamed of a race or nation that would so label and damage an otherwise valuable day of the week. It is no wonder that in the bad old days men shut their shops for half of Wednesday. . . . they were ashamed of the damned thing. Guilt, guilt, guilt. (See S. Freud, the guiltiest man who was ever born, and therefore the least reliable.) Today men shut their shops for practically the whole week, and open them only furtively and by accident, and in one way this is a healthy sign, yet in another it is plain awful. . . . If I had a shop, I would open it on False Boxing Day to prove I was in favor of Real Boxing Day, and dead against orders-in-council written by men with delusions of grandeur who thought they had some divine right to proclaim imaginary festivals to conciliate poor dumb voters who were by no means that dumb. (Nice sentence. Full value.)

THE French call Wednesday mercredi, with a small m, which is silly enough. The French have a certain sense of style, but it bogs down badly when you start examining it critically. All you can say about it is that it is better than ours. And a more horrible compliment I cannot imagine. But at least they didn't name a day after Wotan or Wotan, the king of the bores, the favorite son of Wagner. And if they had named a day after that halfwitted god, they'd never have spelt it Wednesday. Wednesday doesn't mean a thing. Even spelt backwards, or upside-downs. It's a rotten name. I wouldn't call a dog Wednesday.

Incidentally, I don't see why rotten names are traditionally reserved for dogs. Dogs and cats deserve quite decent names. . . . and are awarded them by me, if by nobody else. I have called dogs Hamish, Minnie, Wallace, and Jacob, which is more than most have done, and in the matter of cats I have done even better.

I HAVE named cats Bush (short for Bushy-cat) and Sam and Loopy (short for Lupus, which is a wolf) and Tim, which is always a reliable name. I even named one of my sons Tim, after my cat. Again, this is more than you ever did. . . . Have you a daughter named Pussy? . . . I thought not.

I never thought of naming a cat Tribby, but when a friend of mine named her cat thus I felt very jealous, which shows it has the right instincts. Sam Butler (the Notebook man, not the Cavalier poet) said that to name a kitten is the test of genius, and to name a kitten Tribby is more than a mere tour de force. It shows a sense of the fitness of things. Cat-fitness. A bird named Tribby would be a disgusting object, but a cat named Tribby would be somebody I was proud to know. Would be, and is. And by the way, when a cat eats a bird, it shows the cat has the right instinct too. Every time. It is the main thing I like about cats. It springs from a sense of neatness.

WELL, so much for naming anything Wednesday. My own personal week contains no such day. It goes straight from Tuesday, which is a lovely name, to Thursday, which is named after poor old Thor, a guy I have always felt very sorry for. . . . a big dumb cluck, who did a lot of skiing, I bet, but who never became very Wotanish. Wotan was a pain in the neck. Thor was just a dull ache. Thor did no good, but he did no harm. Wotan was full of the power of positive thinking. The minute I met him, I put my finger on the trouble right away. He was the most overpositive bloke I ever met. Did Wotan ever consider that he might be wrong? Not he.

SPEAKING of Thor, the poor little old Scandinavian god of thunder, reminds me of our local god the Thunderbird. It is only in recent years that we have begun to worship this pitiful lump of heavy-winged mumbo-jumbo. We not only invite tourists to come here to see a Thunderbird who doesn't exist, but we while away the hours between tourists by invoking the god and asking him to come down and reign a thousand years. Reign and sleet. Never heard the like. If the Thunderbird is listening now, which I very much doubt, I would like to tell the ugly numbskull that I for one do not believe in him. At noon tomorrow, on Thursday, Thor's Day, I invite him to strike me dead in the Post Office. (Why the Post Office? I don't know. It's the most holy place we can think of in this godless age, I suppose. An age where we summon up Thunderbirds for lack of anything better.)

POWELL RIVER PLAN

Blue Chips for FMLs

THE POWELL River Company Limited, giant of the newsprint industry, has presented its brief to the Sloan Commission on Forestry.

The views of the company, often in sharp conflict with those of H. R. MacMillan, are vastly important to British Columbians. This is a huge producer in a vital field. While the company concedes that "volume-wise, lumber is still the leading product of the forest," Powell River's product is the one on which increasing economic dependence will be placed. The shift from plank to pulp has been going on for some time. Powell River was in on the ground floor in B.C.

Harold Foley
"Mr. Powell River"

Undoubtedly its position influences its recommendations to the Sloan commission on the question of Forest Management Licences. It would require applicants for FMLs to throw all their privately held timber into the deal in order to get an equal amount of Crown timber from the Government under a licence.

TO THOSE THAT HAVE . . . In other words, only interests with timber of their own could get FMLs—with one exception. Powell River would approve Forest Management Licences "in remote areas where it is considered in the public interest to establish large integrated, high-utilization plants." In such cases—and Columbia Cellulose Licence No. 1 is cited as an example—the contributory feature would be dropped. The applicant would not have to have timber of his own to throw into the pot.

The attitude taken by the company reflects, in substantial degree, its philosophy that "in economic affairs no one has yet discovered an adequate substitute for enlightened self interest, guided by wise laws." The brief's FML proposal shows enlightened self interest.

Powell River pioneered in its field in British Columbia, purchasing certain pulp leases, power rights and a mill site from a British company in 1909. It weathered the storms of hard times, skipped dividend payments to stockholders in the depression, but hung on. It's big now, big and wealthy. It has timber of its own with which to bargain, and it could bargain preferentially on the basis of the FML policy it proposes.

Powell River has not been granted the Forest Management Licence for which it made application. It has secured one through the purchase of another firm.

The company places its own interpretation on the reasons for the creation of Forest Management Licences.

One at least is open to question. It is not conceded by the Forest Service that FMLs were needed to pass into private hands part of the burden of managing forests, as the brief contends.

But it is agreed that FMLs were desirable to bring temporary tenures under sustained yield management.

SURRENDERING PRIVATE CONTROL Powell River holds timber under several tenures. Should it be granted the licence it has sought, that timber would be placed under the same measure of Government control as would Crown timber that might be included in a Forest Management Licence granted to someone who has no timber at all.

Some Crown timber, as the brief points out, has been allocated in that way, that is, with no balancing contribution of privately-owned timber by the licensee. If the 365-50-acre management were established on the coast—if every FML were granted with the Government and the licensee putting up equal amounts of timber—then, says the brief, less than half the total Coast timber would be alienated in licences. The larger part would be available for public working circles, for sources of supply to industries that cannot qualify for licences, and possibly for new industries in undeveloped areas of the Coast.

The proposal seems eminently fair to companies dependent on forest raw materials which have timber of their own. To what degree such a system of allotting licences would invite development capital into B.C. is another question.

Powell River takes the stand that those concerns which have providently acquired their own timber should be rewarded. They should not be penalized in a game in which the newer players have no like stake to contribute.—A.H.S.

Race for the Missile

BY JOSEPH and STEWART ALSOP, From Washington

AS 1955 ended, Marshal Bulganin grimly boasted to the meeting of the Supreme Soviet in Moscow that the Soviet armed forces would soon have an intercontinental ballistic missile, or ICBM in current Pentagon jargon. After this, at any rate, no one can deny we have been warned. To be sure, it can be rather positively stated that the Soviets have not yet tested one of these huge rockets that can carry an H-bomb warhead from a Russian launching target.

Firings of such rockets will unavoidably produce atmospheric and other after-effects. These after-effects can be detected by appropriate devices all the way round the world, as firings of nuclear weapons can also be detected. The American "detection" devices have not yet registered the firing of a Soviet ICBM. This perhaps explains the curious mixture of private complicity and public untruth that has been the Pentagon reaction to the news from Moscow.

But if Secretary of Defence Charles E. Wilson and his subordinates are greatly reassured by the silence of our detection devices, they must have comfortably forgotten all the ugly lessons of the last ten years.

ADVANCE NOTICE

The truth is that the Soviets have quite regularly telegraphed their weapons development punches, boasting about each new weapon as soon as they were confident they had solved the design problem and were preparing for a test.

For instance, Vyacheslav Molotov told another Moscow audience that the Soviets already possessed an A-bomb, just about a year before the first Soviet A-bomb test in September, 1949.

Much the same thing happened with the Soviet H-bomb; and it happened too, although in a more general way, with the remarkable postwar development of the Soviet aircraft industry.

Why the Soviets follow this strange pattern is a fascinating problem in itself; but the point here is that they have followed it to date with great faithfulness. Hence it is only prudent to expect that sometime within the next year or so, the Soviets will successfully test one of these intercontinental ballistic missiles, which are also called, and quite properly called, "The Ultimate Weapons."

This will not be especially surprising either, as readers of many anxious reports in this space will readily recognize.

As previously disclosed, the official U.S. intelligence forecasts some time ago named the year 1958 as the first probable date of a Soviet test of the Ultimate Weapon. But from the time of the A-bomb onwards, these American official forecasts have invariably underestimated future Soviet achievements in weapons development by at least two years. All the known facts, in short, fit together only too neatly.

Meanwhile, where do we stand? The answer is easy.

When Secretary of Defence Charles E. Wilson took office, he seriously tried to cancel the American long-range missile projects, which he denounced as "visionary". Our armed services, he declared, were spending outrageous sums on research and development. The percentage of income that General Motors spent for such purposes, he pointed out, was much, much less.

SHELVED PROJECTS

It may sound like a joke, but it actually happened. Fortunately, Wilson was finally persuaded not to cancel the long range missile projects altogether. Yet he caused them to be shelved, for all practical purposes, for the first two years of his administration of the Pentagon.

Then more and more disturbing reports began to come in, showing a wide Soviet lead in missile development. The so-called Killian Report, which was first summarized in this space, revealed an acutely dangerous situation.

Some months ago, the National Security Council voted to give an over-riding first priority to missile development. And the Pentagon is now going all-out to build missiles, at least to the extent that the Wilson Pentagon is capable of going all-out in any field of weapons development.

As a result, very important breakthroughs have been made already. Yet only a few days before Bulganin spoke, Secretary Wilson himself publicly stated that it would probably be about five years before we could fire an ICBM. Thus, on present prospects, there will be a gap of three to four years between the first Soviet test of the Ultimate Weapon, and the equivalent American test. This tenuous prospect has hardly caused a ripple in the United States, because of public ignorance and self-interested official pool-poohing. Instead, the whole country ought to be up in arms.

As Our Readers See It

NOT ELECTRONICS

I feel I must comment on an inaccuracy in a report in your paper on the break in the organ of Christ Church Cathedral. The word "electronics" has no application to a pipe organ. The defects of our instrument at the cathedral are almost entirely the result of very indifferent workmanship with regard to electric wiring and magnetic connections.

I may add that nobody is more embarrassed than an organist whose instrument refuses to speak when it is spoken to.

FAIR REPORTING

Permit me to express a word of appreciation in the general interest for the fair reporting and publicity by your paper during the past months of the Board of Reference hearing of the appeal from dismissal of myself by the Board of School Trustees of Greater Victoria.

As this has been, and is, a serious matter of public affairs and involves important principles of democratic administration and is of wide interest to the public, it would appear to have merited reasonably full and impartial reporting.

Regardless of the official ruling (as yet not notified), one can feel only that the press did a good job of keeping this matter before the public.

HELPING THE BOYS

The president and members of the Victoria Optimist Club wish to express to the citizens of Victoria their appreciation for the very fine support accorded to us during our recent Christmas Tree sale campaign. It is very gratifying to find that this last campaign was the most successful of any we have conducted and it will enable the club to carry on their various boys' work projects in the Greater Victoria area.

We would also like to express our thanks to those business firms in the city without whose help the campaign could not have been the success it was.

Crooks Were Too Cheap

LONDON—The moral of this little story is—If you want to be a good crook, don't be stingy.

Reyburn

In the Birmingham area, four shady characters were driving in a car to a rendezvous where they were going to do the final planning of their scheme to blow up the safe in a local post office. They had cased the place inside and out and it looked like an easy thing to go back that night and pull off the job.

Suddenly one of the black cars of Scotland Yard's Flying Squad overtook them and signalled them to pull up. Detectives jumped out and in no time had found the damning evidence of gelignite and burglary tools in the car.

They were arrested and they were greatly puzzled as to how the cops had got onto them. They had been careful, when looking over the setup of the post office, not to go in together. Each had gone in singly, looked the place over while making a purchase at the counter and then rejoined the others in the car outside. Nothing to arouse suspicion about that.

But at their trial they learned what their mistake had been. The postmaster told how on that day he had been serving the numerous customers lined up at the counter. A man came in and bought a penny stamp. Another man came in and did likewise. Then another. Then a fourth man. They were seemingly innocent purchases, but the postmaster was puzzled and followed the last man out and saw him get into a car. He noted the number and phoned the police. They at once tracked down the car and made their arrests.

Why had the postmaster been suspicious? Each of the crooks had been stingy and only invested in a penny stamp. They had overlooked the fact that a penny stamp by itself is useless. It won't mail anything. A penny-half-penny stamp is the cheapest anyone would buy singly—it mails circulars. Penny stamps are only bought with others to make up an odd amount of postage.

And now they're all in jail—because they were too mean to spend an extra halfpenny on their plot.

Another gang of crooks—fictional this time—feature in the new Alec Guinness film, "The Lady Killers." Folks here were looking forward to this one because it was written by William Rose, the man who dreamed up the now classic "Genevieve." But I found it more than a disappointment. It was embarrassingly bad.

Five crooks rent a room from a dear old lady while planning a robbery and to ally her suspicions they pretend to be a string quartet. Gramophone records of string music charm the old dear while the desperate-looking blokes plan their evil among their unused instruments. A funny idea.

At halfway through the film apparently script writer Rose ran out of inspiration and these five thugs set out murdering each other. Murder on such a lavish scale, with the bodies dumped into passing railroad trucks, doesn't come out very funny.

Let's hope the movie Guinness is now making in Hollywood with Grace Kelly, "The Swan," is a good one, because this "Lady Killers" thing following his flop in "To Paris With Love," has caused his film comedy reputation to sag.

YOUR HEALTH

By DR. WALTER C. ALVAREZ

Friendly With Patients

Dr. Alvarez is Emeritus Consultant in Medicine, Mayo Clinic and Emeritus Professor of Medicine, Mayo Foundation.

MUCH of the happiness that has come to me in my 50 years of the practice of medicine has come because of the hundreds of warm friendships it has brought me. When one shares anxieties and sorrows with a fellow human being, one tends to come very close emotionally to that person and his family. Every Christmas I get scores of letters from old patients, a few of them even from my San Francisco days, 30 years and more ago. Oftentimes, as I read one of these kindly letters, my mind flashes back, perhaps to a night when I sat beside a bed, hoping, hoping that I could find some treatment that would stop an important life from ebbing away.

Dr. Alvarez

Oftentimes it is so easy to make a dear friend of a patient that I feel sorry that so many of my medical and surgical brethren miss this joy. It doesn't take much time to stop and say a kind or a cheering word, or to respond to a person's feelers toward a better acquaintance and some friendship. Some of my surgical friends say to me with annoyance: "My patients pay me for an operation; not for chatting with them." But I am sure that the stand they take not only robs them of a much richer life—it accounts for much of the bad feeling that has come up between us physicians and the public.

I remember reading in the autobiography of a famous surgeon, that when wounded in France in World War I, he was so skillfully treated by an army doctor that, he felt that for the rest of his days, he ought to be grateful to the fellow, but he wasn't. He always remembered that doctor with great dislike. Why? Because the doctor left him with the feeling that he was an inanimate object whose pain, anxiety, great homesickness, and fear of future disablement or death were of no interest whatsoever. A few words of kindness and encouragement would have changed all that. The Army doctor might have spent an extra 30 seconds ripping the injured man to him as a devoted friend, but he would not or perhaps could not do it.

Many a time I have heard a patient say, "I know I owe my life to my surgeon, but to the end of my days I will dislike him because, one night when in the great loneliness of my hospital room, I reached out for a little human friendliness, he brushed me off discourteously and stalked out. He would not stop long enough even to tell me what, at the operation, he had found and done, and what were my chances of being well again."

ARTHRITIS AND DIET
Many persons suffering from arthritis ask me if they should buy some expensive food supplement or if they should try some special diet. All I can say is that, so far as I know, there is no special diet that has any curative effect on arthritis. Some arthritides who are fat and much too heavy could help themselves by taking 50 or 80 pounds off their poor pounded-down knees or ankles. Others, whose severe and painful arthritis has made them thin and anaemic, should be on a highly nutritious diet, such as would strengthen their bodies. I hear of men who preach the value of diet as a cure for arthritis, but I never heard the great world experts on arthritis advocating such a measure. This world is full of men who have cashed in beautifully on reckless promises made to the sick. The sick are so anxious to get help that they will clutch at any expensive straw.

I remember how once William James, the philosopher, wrote his friend, Sir William Osler, the great Canadian physician, that he was going to France to take some treatment from a quack who he heard was treating high blood pressure, such as James had. Today, the French quack and his treatment have gone their way into the oblivion that awaits all quacks and all of their treatments. What has always fascinated me is the fact that the great William James did not think to ask Osler what he knew of the quack or thought of the treatment. I imagine James wanted some treatment and did not want to be disillusioned about it! Aren't we humans funny?

As Osler used to say, we physicians must always deal gently with this delightfully credulous old human nature of ours. We should never get impatient over it, but should remember that the sick man wants to be doing something, even if it means he must give $1,000 in advance to a man whose only qualification for the treatment of disease is years of training as a swindler and confidence man.

DEMONSTRATION OF THE CHRISTIANITY TURN BEFORE THE ONE AND ONLY

HOME GARDEN

By HILDA BEASTALL

Garden May Benefit From Early Frosts

With a whole new year ahead the local gardening fraternity is in the delectable condition of anticipation.

Aided and abetted by the plant catalogues, encouraged by the few minutes more of daylight noticeable at the day's end, and urged by the appearance of bulb tips in the wet soil our enthusiasm is again becoming a bright flag in the pale winter sun.

Hilda This coming spring will test the experience and skill of gardeners in this locality, for the November frost has left us a legacy of repair and salvage.

Much good may come to the home gardener out of this, by necessitating considerable pruning of many shrubs otherwise allowed to go rampant. Flowers of some will be curtailed or even entirely lacking for a season, others will benefit this year from the severe pruning.

But at the moment we may be concerned with plans to fill the borders with color until the shrubs and other damaged plants may recover or be replaced.

The answer would seem to lie in adding quick growing perennial plants, with dwarf or alpine species as edgings in well drained positions. Colorful annuals, too, will come into favor this year no doubt, to fill the gaps temporarily.

Pt. Ellice Bridge Rebuilding Would Close Bay St. 3 Months

Reconstruction of Point Ellice Bridge will mean re-routing of Bay Street traffic for a three-month period, city engineer J. C. Garnett said Tuesday.

A by-law proposing a $300,000 issue of debentures to aid in construction of the $500,000 bridge will be presented to Victoria electors, probably next month.

A report on bridge planning was read to council public works meeting Tuesday. Reporters were admitted to that meeting and to the finance meeting Wednesday in continuance of the open-door policy re-commenced last week by Ald. Robert Macmillan's parks committee.

City solicitor Arthur Patton provided the committee with a draft of the bridge by-law which goes to council Thursday. It will probably be given first reading then laid on the table until those Victorians entitled to vote on money by-laws express their desire.

In order to pass, the by-law requires a 3/5 majority. Once approved by council it must be approved by provincial authorities and federal government departments concerned with structures across harbor waters. It must go to the electors from 10 to 30 days after council approves it, Mr. Patton said.

His report was filed. City engineer James C. Garnett described the new bridge as a project of 12 months duration and he estimated that demolition and initial construction would require a three-month closure to traffic.

He suggested it be built on existing piers and would contain four spans. It would have two traffic lanes of 28-foot width plus two five feet wide sidewalks. Length would be 600 feet and minimum clearance at high tide, 30 feet, 12 feet higher than the present structure. Approaches would be graded about five degrees.

Water mains which now cross the surface of the bridge are slated to be built under the right-of-way on the new span.

He said it would be of "clean design," and built with steel girders on pre-stressed concrete. Complete cost is estimated to amount to $500,000. Although the city has in a bridge fund close to $250,000 at present, that amount over $200,000 will be kept available either for emergency or payment against debentures, it was indicated by committee talks.

DEATH CAR LIFTED

Late model car in which man died in plunge from bridge near Nanaimo is lifted 45-feet from deep water, where car and body were located by navy frogmen. Large crowd watched grim operation.

Honeymoon Bay Man Bridge Crash Victim

Special to The Times

NANAIMO — It is expected victim of a crash-drowning Monday near Nanaimo will be identified as Reuben Ordell Norman, aged 50, a single man, recently of Honeymoon Bay, coroner Dr. H. W. Lewis said today.

Inquest was scheduled for 2 p.m. today. Ollie Theodore Norman of Langley Prairie is believed to be a brother of the deceased and is expected to make positive identification.

Reuben Norman left Honeymoon Bay Dec. 23 and was expected back Jan. 10. It is presumed he was en route there when the accident took place. The body and car were brought from the Nanaimo river at noon Tuesday by navy frogmen. The car had crashed through the guard rail on the east side of the 18-foot span across the river canyon, six miles south of Nanaimo, at about 2:30 p.m. Monday.

PO G. W. Shaw, one of the frogmen, located car and body in 35 feet of water. The car had plunged 45 feet off a rocky ledge before striking the water.

BODY OUTSIDE

The driver's body was outside the car. It wasn't determined whether the driver was thrown out or had attempted to escape.

LS Robert Larsen hooked a cable around the rear axle of the vehicle and a Nanaimo tow truck hauled the car straight up from the river. The car had skid chains on the rear wheels. Tires were intact.

Unidentified witnesses claim to have seen Norman driving at a high rate of speed in the area shortly before the accident happened.

A crowd of 500 persons made it necessary for the RCMP to close the bridge during hoisting operations.

The grim spectacle reminded observers of a similar tragedy which took place on the bridge May 3, 1946, when eight persons from Victoria, four of them children, plunged through the

Line of Old Cars Will Form Seawall

By DICK FREEMAN

SAANICHTON—Central Saanich Council decided Tuesday night to build a unique Island View Beach experimental breakwater made of rock and old cars.

The decision came after council heard a plea from beach residents for protection from the hammering force of destructive gales which recently forced them to flee their flooded homes.

The rock and old jalopy breakwater plan was spearheaded by Coun. Ray Lamont.

He revived his pet theory of building the novel breakwater to replace the damaged wooden structure by dumping old car bodies along the beach to anchor the sand and thereby form a natural barrier to the pounding waves.

Drunk Hunters Blasted By Farmer

SAANICHTON — Complete closing of the hunting season in Central Saanich was urged for consideration by municipal council Monday night by farmer William Taylor.

He charged that drunken hunters stood along the fence line during three months of the duck shooting season, firing indiscriminately and peppering cattle with shot.

Willard Mitchell, who farms an adjoining property, took a more lenient view.

If any closure was contemplated, he thought it should be limited to ducks.

Farmer Taylor claimed that hunters raided his farm without permission and endangered his cows while shooting from the highway.

"I trust you will give this your earnest consideration and make it possible for us farmers to live in peace," he said.

The complaint was referred to the police commission.

The ancient jalopies, he suggested, would be placed every 100 feet along the beach from high to low watermark and he guaranteed from past experience that it would work 100 per cent.

He said he contacted operators of car body shops over the weekend and had been promised all the old heaps necessary for the job. Hauling the derelict cars to the site was the only problem.

Rebuilding of the breakwater, Coun. John Windsor thought, should be a government responsibility, especially because the federal authorities had financed the original timber barricade as a war relief measure.

Coun. Harry Peard supported this view, but favored the experiment first.

Coun. Lamont said no government support will be given since Central Saanich, when it became a municipality, had assumed all the assets and liabilities of Saanich.

Suggestion of Thomas and Willard Mitchell, members of a pioneer family of farmers, that a rock wall to provide a wide apron would help to solve the problem, was also accepted.

They promised to supply the large rocks necessary for the purpose.

Mabel Cracks $32,000 Award On TV Quiz

NEW YORK (AP)—Mabel Morris, a 74-year-old widow who lives in a home for the aged, Tuesday night ransacked her remarkable knowledge of Charles Dickens' work to win $32,000 on a television quiz show.

London-born Mrs. Morris, who once taught school in Selkirk, Man., gave the answers to a complex five-part question with no hesitation.

Next week she gets a crack at $64,000. "I shall look forward to returning," she said. She can quit with her $32,000 or risk it to go for the big prize on the CBS show, "The $64,000 Question."

Mrs. Morris, a schoolteacher for many years, now receives support from the New York City welfare department. She has said she will repay $7,000 to the welfare department out of her winnings—the money it has spent for her support in the past several years.

NAMES CHARACTERS

Mrs. Morris named the Garlands in "The Old Curiosity Shop"; Martin Chuzzlewit Jr., as the character who visited America as Dickens did; Grip as the name of Dickens' pet raven; Wilkins Micawber in "David Copperfield"; and finally, the Cheeryble brothers in "Nicholas Nickleby."

Mrs. Morris moved to Canada from England in 1902 and taught in a one-room school at Selkirk until she moved to the United States in 1910.

Careless Drivers Each Fined $35

Charges of careless driving resulted in $35 fines for two men when they appeared in Esquimalt police court Monday.

Fined were William Diachyshyn, Work Point Barracks, and George A. Downey, HMCS Digby. Diachyshyn's licence was suspended.

Both were involved in recent minor accidents in Esquimalt.

Two FOR THE Show

By PHIL LEE

A—Once Clear
B—Worthwhile
C—To Put In Time

(BB) "THE RAINS OF RANCHIPUR" (Capitol)

Although the wide-screen colored photography is magnificent, sometimes bordering upon the breath-taking, 20th Century-Fox's "The Rains of Ranchipur" is marred by the well-used plot about a white woman falling for a native doctor while visiting with her husband in India.

The plot, in brief: English Lord Michael Rennie goes to Ranchipur to buy a famous Arabian stallion from the Maharani, with money given to him by his wealthy, frivolous and callous American wife, Lana Turner. While at Ranchipur Lana loses her heart to famous physician Dr. Safti, played by Richard Burton.

The rift between Rennie and Lana is about complete when the great rains come, dams burst, buildings topple and death and desolation are everywhere. It is here that the cinemaScope photography reaches its height.

MEANWHILE LANA

falls seriously ill and Dr. Safti must make a choice between staying with his patients or going to his white love. He stays with his patients. However, in the end, the day is saved by ex-engineer Fred MacMurray who forgets his two loves, copious quantities of Scotch and an old mistress called idealism, long enough to blow up the jam in the river and free the rampaging waters.

However, in the year 1956, most adult theatre-goers will find this ending much too idealistic for their liking. Rejuvenated tipster MacMurray falls into the willing arms of Joan Caulfield, and much more difficult to believe, Rennie and Lana, who has nobly let Dr. Safti escape her man-hungry hands, smile tenderly at one another in the fade-out after saying things to one another throughout the picture that would guarantee to split a brace of saints which, patently, Rennie and Lana are not.

UBC Club's 'Liliom' Lacking Adjudicator

VANCOUVER (CP)—The University of British Columbia Players' Club Alumni "Liliom" Festival Tuesday night in their presentation of "Liliom," said adjudicator Pamela Stirling of London.

The performance lacked "a simple, earthy quality," Miss Stirling told an audience of 300 at the Avon Theatre here as the B.C. regional drama festival opened.

Miss Stirling said the alumni, who last year won top honors at the Dominion Drama Festival with Arthur Miller's "The Crucible," may have been hindered by a change in directors shortly before presentation.

The festival continues until Saturday. Tonight the Vancouver Little Theatre presents Sidney Kings-

MARCEL'S A CENTREMAN NOW

Figuring that a bit of punch was needed up front during the second period at Memorial Arena Tuesday night was Victoria Cougars' goaltender Marcel Pelletier as he wandered far from his customary haunts. Filling in as goaltender is Nelson Bullock (4), while Jim Robertson (8), Vancouver Canucks' Fred Brown (15), Bill Davidson (5) and

IT'S MY VIEW BY Bill Walker

The bet was on, and we were to render the verdict. Judging by the noise, the bistro must have been taxed to capacity when the call came.

"Shay," said the voice, "you know anything about baseball?"

"Well, listen, will ya—remember the time that Joe Medwick got pelted with fruit and beer cans in a world series?"

"You do, good? Well, what I wanta know is did he get kicked outta the game or was he taken out by his manager, and who did he have the fight with?"

"Yeah, I'll wait, but hurry will ya, this place closes in 10 minutes."

The caller had touched on one of baseball's most famous incidents. He was a trifle off base in his facts, but so was his pal; and, from what we gathered later, neither won the wager and both departed happily. Or so it sounded.

Medwick had neither been booted out of the game or taken out by his manager. His removal was ordered by baseball commissioner Judge Kenesaw Mountain Landis.

The incident, one of the most hostile fan demonstrations in the history of baseball, occurred in the final game of the 1934 world series between the St. Louis Cardinals and the Detroit Tigers. The series was tied three games apiece with the deciding contest in Detroit.

The motor city was in a frenzied mood. It had been their first pennant year since 1909 and the town was ripe for a party to celebrate the series triumph.

They Didn't Respond to Treatment

But as early as the third inning the Tiger fans were to be jolted out of their revelry. The Cardinals scored seven runs off Eldon Auker and the ace of the Detroit staff, Schoolboy Rowe.

From reports of the game, it seemed the Tiger fans resented their heroes being treated this way. And if they were spoiling for a fight to give vent to their feelings they got it soon enough.

In the sixth inning with Pepper Martin on base, Medwick came to bat. Medwick rifled one of Tommy Bridges' pitches off the bleacher wall in right field. Martin scored and Medwick barreled for third. He got the slide sign from the coach and hooked the bag. When the dust had cleared he lashed out with both feet at Tiger third baseman Marv Owen. The fight was on, Owen swinging back at Medwick. Umpires and players of the respective teams pulled the combatants apart.

Nothing serious had happened—yet. But the din in the stands was growing in intensity as Medwick scored the ninth St. Louis run.

Then, as the teams changed positions, the pent-up ire of the Detroit fans broke. Medwick, as he moved toward his left-field position, was greeted with an ever-increasing crescendo of boos. As he neared the stands, a barrage of fruit was aimed at him. He picked up some of the salad and threw it back in the stands. Incensed by now, the fans retaliated with a pop-bottle barrage, and Joe retired to the safety of the infield while the debris was cleared.

Fans Threw Everything Handy

Urged on by other fans, too far away to take part themselves, the left-field contingent continued to litter the field with anything they could pick up and throw.

Some even tried to hurdle the restraining barriers, but were thwarted by police.

Even a personal appeal by Tiger manager Mickey Cochran had no effect, and when the wrath of the crowd would not subside, Judge Landis intervened.

He summoned Medwick, Owen, the managers and chief umpire Bill Klem to his box. All gave their stories. When the hearing was completed, Medwick claiming that Owen had tried to jump on him as he was sliding into the bag, and Owen denying the charges, Landis made his decision.

Medwick would have to go.

It was said by the judge afterwards that the ruling was made, not because Medwick was the more guilty of the two, but so that the rioting would subside and the game could continue.

When Chick Fullis replaced Medwick, the Detroit fans, who had been fuming minutes earlier, responded with a healthy cheer.

For the record, the Cards won the game, 11-0, and the series, and left town that night under heavy police protection.

Buenos Aires Hosts World Title Fight

BUENOS AIRES (AP)—Pasual Perez, unbeaten in his 25 fight career, defends his world flyweight championship tonight against Leo Espinosa of the Philippines in the first world title bout ever held in Buenos Aires.

A sellout crowd of 25,000 is expected for the scheduled 15-round match at Luna Park. A block-long line of eager fans had to go through with a re-crowded stadium all match with Shirai at Tokyo, day Tuesday, buying standing-room tickets.

The 29-year-old Perez, who first gained fame by winning four of 44 starts,

'Gump' Tops in Stops

Workhorse Worsley Real Busy Fielder

MONTREAL (BUP)—The New York Rangers' workhorse goaltender, Lorne (Gump) Worsley, backed into a first-place tie with Montreal's Jacques Plante atop the league "fielding averages" today, each with .933 marks.

Based on a percentage of saves versus shots, figures compiled by the British United Press showed Plante experienced his worst week of the campaign, sliding three points in the ratings as he fielded a poor .879 last week, permitting six goals on 46 shots during two games.

Worsley, the little crew-cut netminder in the Ranger case, allowed nine goals, but faced considerably more rubber, 71 shots.

Plante, who has appeared somewhat jittery since he returned to action Dec. 29 after missing six games because of a broken nose, has handled a total of 785 of 841 shots. Worsley, the National Hockey League's busiest goalie, has made 1,243 saves on 1,333 shots in 37 games.

WING ROOKIE THIRD

Fourteen points off the pace of the leaders was Detroit's Glenn Hall with .914 (.885 for 1968). The Red Wing rookie also had a poor week, fanning 10 times on 80 shots in three games, to slip three points.

Chicago's Al Rollins, who was given a rest last week while sub-goalie Hank Bassen took over, ranked fourth with a .909 mark (1.168 for 1,285).

Veteran Harry Lumley of Toronto, the only netminder to gain during the past two weeks, moved out of last place for the first time, fielding 45 of 49 shots in two games since Christmas, Lumley has picked up seven points for a .907 (1,000 for 1,103) average.

Boston's Terry Sawchuk, last year's Vezina trophy winner with Detroit, dropped into last place after sliding seven points Dec. 29. Last week he let 10 out of 69 shots get past him for a seasonal mark of .905 (1,105 for 1,221).

PHOENIX, Ariz. (UPI)—Jimmy Martinez, 135, Glendale, Ariz., drew with Dick Goldstein, 130, Los Angeles (10).

QUAKERS LOSE GAME, TWO PLAYERS

SASKATOON (CP)—Saskatoon Quakers, saddled with injuries for several weeks, had two more players injured Tuesday night when they lost 4-3 to Seattle Americans in a Western Hockey League game.

Winger Vic Lynn suffered torn ligaments in his left knee and club officials say he likely will be out for two weeks. Defenceman Bill Folk suffered a broken nose.

Goalie Emile Francis was sent earlier with a gimpy knee. Dick Lamoureux has missed several games with a groin injury and Howie Milford is sidelined with a knee injury which required an operation.

LET'S JUST CALL THIS FELLOW 'STUKE'

WASHINGTON (AP)—Washington Senators Tuesday signed a pitcher who—if he makes the grade in professional baseball—is going to drive radio announcers and headline writers crazy. His name: Victor H. Stuckenschneider.

The Senators represented themselves as being delighted with the fellow, a graduate of the University of Utah. In the last two years, he pitched for the army team at Fort Sill, Okla. He won 21 games, including a no-hitter. He lost three.

Stuckenschneider was assigned to the club's double-A farm club at Chattanooga, Tenn.

DRAKES SLAPPED DOWN

Fevered Farmers Eye Hoop Leaders

Farmer Construction are going to settle for nothing but the best in the Senior "B" Men's Basketball League race after slapping down Drakes, 53-39, Tuesday night at Central Junior High School gym.

The best are undefeated Dickinson & Dunn and Farmers, now only four points behind the leading Tremen, will have their big chance Thursday night when the two teams meet head-on at Central.

BOYD LEADS ROST

Farmers prepped for their big moment by vaulting to a 26-17 lead at half time over the third-place Drakes and continued the assault with a 27-22 margin in the second half.

Charlie Boyd led the winners with a busy 19-point effort, high for both teams, while Tillman Briggs dropped in 17 points for Drakes.

In preliminary games, St. Louis College dumped YMCA, 30-6, in a midweek boys' encounter and Sooke Blues downed Sooke Whites, 42-28.

Scorers follow:

Farmers—Boyd 19, Strank 6, Hunter 6, Jones 10, Anderson, Bond 2, Worth 2, Garner 8, Shulds, Total—53.

Leaky Radiator Kept Gord's Hockey Motor Turning Over

Gord Hannigan is still in big-league hockey because his car once had a leaky radiator and a flat tire.

But for the two incidents he might be in Edmonton selling ice cream. Instead, he's back in the National Hockey League with Toronto Maple Leafs.

The leaky rad and punctured tube turned up last September. The 26-year-old Hannigan was in training camp with Pittsburgh Hornets, Leafs' American League farm club.

Hannigan, who was demoted and promoted so often he could have made the trip from Toronto to Pittsburgh blindfolded, felt if he had to stay in the minors he would rather spend his time in the Western

Who's Gonna Score In This Crazy Feud?

Cats, Canucks Battle To Scoreless Saw-Off

Victoria 0, Vancouver 0

By BILL WALKER

Times have changed. Unlike the lamp post to the drunk, statistics today can be construed to be as more illuminating than to be leaned upon.

The reason is that although Victoria Cougars and Vancouver Canucks like scoring as many goals as possible, the simple fact is, against each other, they can't very often.

First case in point is last night's Western Hockey League game at Memorial Arena. The score: Victoria 0, Vancouver 0.

This was the first scoreless game here since Edmonton Flyers and the Cougars had a double shutout last year on Feb. 9.

Marcel, Mikulan Real Misers

Put these figures together and here's what you get, courtesy of the excellent goaltending feats of rivals, Ray Mikulan of the Canucks, and Marcel Pelletier of the Cougars. They were outstanding last night.

One—Pelletier has now blanked the Canucks for a total of 170 minutes and two seconds, or almost three complete games.

Two—The Cougars have scored but one goal against the Canucks in 239 minutes and 43 seconds, or almost four complete games.

Three—Mikulan has blanked the Cougars for a total of 109 minutes and 43 seconds in Vancouver. Skip Teal being the last Cougar to score on the mainland at 10:17 of the first period.

Little wonder is it then that Monday night the goals wouldn't come.

Canucks Stopped at Doorstep

Pelletier saved most of his heroics for the final period, although in the second he saved well on a blistering drive from Egan and turned another drive off the goal post.

In the final frame Earl Johnson and Les Lilley were on the doorstep but couldn't open the door.

It was a pulsating duel from the start, gaining in tenseness as it progressed. And it was a limp, and nerve-shattered crowd of 2,500 which left the building, feeling probably that the scoreless ending was a fitting climax.

And surely to Pelletier it was. For it was his second consecutive shutout (he blanked the Royals here Friday), his sixth

Amerks Nip Quakers; Regals Blank Stamps

Seattle 4, Saskatoon 3

Brandon 2, Calgary 0

The up-and-coming Seattle Americans made the biggest gain in the western division of the Western Hockey League Tuesday night when they scored a 4-3 victory over Saskatoon Quakers in Saskatoon.

The victory allowed the tail-end Americans to gain a point on league-leading Vancouver Canucks and second-place Victoria Cougars, who battled to a scoreless draw.

The Brandon Regals scored their second straight victory on their new home ice, dropping Calgary Stampede, 2-0. The win was Regals' fourth in their last five games and moved them to within one point of fourth place in the prairie division.

In Saskatoon, Ollie Dorohoy, Alex Kuzma, Bev Bell and Guyle Fielder took care of Americans' scoring with Tommy McCarthy, Bob Chrystal and Dave Gordichuk scoring for Quakers, who dropped their fifth straight game.

The game was a rowdy affair, with Ray Crew of Quakers and Pat Cougars of Seattle drawing majors for fighting; Len Haley drawing a misconduct, and Ollie Dorohoy a game misconduct for arguing with referee Blair Peters.

So were Leafs. Hannigan, a native of Schumacker, Ont., went so well with Pittsburgh that Leafs, in dire need of help, called him up a couple of weeks ago. Hannigan, normally a left winger, was sent to right wing on the power play. That attack has been the strongest part of Toronto's game lately.

Toronto coach King Clancy says Hannigan is valuable on the power play because he's a fighter.

"Gord is a chap who isn't afraid to muck into the corner for loose pucks or die a man out of the play. He is going to be a big help in our drive for the playoffs."

WHAT'S THE SCORE? BY Denny Boyd

Although the bottom may fall out of the "steam" hot coffee market, we can't think of one thing to the disfavor of summer soccer.

From a purely personal angle, it would be most enjoyable, to say nothing of unique, to sit in a press-box comfort at a soccer game, idly sipping a cooling soft drink and stopping periodically to roll up the sleeves and loosen the collar.

The present trend sees press-box figures bundled up to the nines with coats, gloves and mufflers, gulping down scalding draughts of coffee.

The fans have it infinitely worse.

No true Victoria soccer fan sits in the stands because that places the players out of ear-shot. No, Victoria's few faithful followers like to line the area behind the goalposts and along the sideline bleachers, where they can holler "Keep it on the island" and other such devastating bon mots while pelted by rain and numbed by winter winds.

Soccer this winter has been a miserable thing for the Victoria Strathconas, the Coast Soccer League and the fans. The unforeseen three-month period of wet, cold and snowy weather rendered Strathconas' Coast League schedule into a gruesome joke, as game after game was called off. Three games since mid-September is Strathconas' record.

Certainly, soccer could never stand another season like this one and the gamble on weather always finds the human element holding the short end of the odds.

Now They Should Agree

On Thursday night, representatives of every team in the Coast Soccer League will reconvene in Vancouver in what should be the last of a series of meetings which have probed the drastic, but entirely necessary switch to a summer schedule. The CSL teams have always been an unpredictable bunch, often swayed more by personal grudges and short-sightedness than by clear thinking and sincerity.

But this time it is almost a lead-pipe cinch that they will agree to a schedule running through the balmy summer months. It is difficult to see, in the rain-shaded light of this season's disastrous setbacks, how they can disagree.

One thing that can be depended on is a hearty affirmative vote from the Victoria delegates. They are fed up to the gills with postponing games and endlessly drilling for matches that never come about.

Since professional baseball died its rheumatic death two summers ago, there has been not only room for, but a need for, another major summer sport. Properly promoted and presented, soccer could occupy that position.

Nobody Else Would Be Hurt

The only major summer sports that can keep themselves on a balanced budget are Intercity lacrosse and senior "A" football. The softballers have their own loyal following that should not be hit hard by the intrusion of soccer while lacrosse would not be hit at all. Strathconas officials have said they would attempt to schedule their games on nights when the Victoria Shamrocks are not playing at home.

A large number of the city's soccer fans are middle-aged and they would certainly welcome the more comfortable summer warmth, as opposed to the damp, chilly conditions that have been in vogue.

There are other appetizing plans that will be voted on tomorrow night, things like a $2,500 entry fee, the appointment of the controversial, self-confessed dictator Jack Hendry as league manager, and the eventual switch to semi-professional soccer.

But, at this time, we are only concerned with the switch to the summer schedule. And we are for it, with every last goose-pimple.

U.S. Team 'Finest', But Is It the 'Best'?

DULUTH, Minn. (AP)—Battle-scarred Johnny Mariucci herded his U.S. Olympic hockey stars east Tuesday, convinced he has the finest amateur players in America but wondering whether he has the best team.

The Olympics broke training camp Tuesday after an all-winning eight-game exhibition swing through Minnesota and North Dakota.

Mariucci, former Chicago Black Hawks mauler and now on leave from his University of Minnesota coaching job, says: "There's no question that we have the best American players available for the Olympic Games. But I'm not sure we're going about this Olympic hockey business the right way."

"Canada, for instance, decides its Olympic representative by tournament. Their Kitchener team is going over there almost as a unit, with support from some of the better players from other teams. Russia, Czechoslovakia and other strong teams do the same thing, I understand."

"We do it here in basketball and other team sports. I think we'd be better off doing the same in hockey."

NEIL STANDLEY

Tars' Standley Nearing Puck Point Crown

Neil Standley has played in only nine games for Navy in the Vancouver Island Amateur Hockey League, but he has made the most of them by scoring a total of 21 goals.

Standley's four assists give him 25 points and the top scoring percentage in the league. With only two league games left, he is almost a cinch to take the scoring title, which is based on percentage because of the unbalanced league schedule.

Top production man is Nanaimo's Bill Sutherland, with 21 goals and 25 assists in 18 games for a total of 46 points.

B.C. LIONS SIGN TWO, BUT WHO?

VANCOUVER (CP)—British Columbia Lions of the Western Interprovincial Football Union, Tuesday received acceptance of 1956 player contracts by telegram from two Michigan State College football stars.

President, Don Mackenzie said the two were players the Lions negotiated with during the Rose Bowl game at Pasadena, Calif., Jan. 2. He declined to name the pair but said one was a lineman, the other a backfielder.

Mackenzie announced last week four players from the University of California at Los Angeles had been signed. They have not yet been named.

Until then no flakes had fallen on this picturesque mountain-side resort for 24 days. The winter Olympics will be held here starting Jan. 26.

"Maybe this will break the Olympic jinx," said Col. Luigi Fabre. Mountain soldiers under his command have been lugging snow from higher areas to cover the cross-country runs and the ski jumps.

Boxing Guilds To Face Trial On Anti-Trust Act Violations

CLEVELAND (AP)—A federal grand jury returned an indictment here Tuesday charging the International Boxing Guild of New York City, the Boxing Guild of Ohio and three of their officers with boycotting and other violations of the Sherman Anti-Trust Act.

The International Boxing is an association of local boxing managers' guilds, whose membership includes the managers of virtually all boxers participating in major matches in the United States.

One of the defendants, Albert W. Del Monte, of Cleveland, president of the Boxing Guild of Ohio, denied that the guild had boycotted anyone and said it worked for the good of fighters because "the promoters were making all the money from television."

The other individual defendants are Charles Johnson, of New York, general president of the International Boxing Guild, and William Daly of Englewood, N.J., its general treasurer.

Maximum penalty on conviction would be a year in jail and a $50,000 fine for the individuals and $50,000 fine for the guilds.

Robert B. Hummel, chief of the Great Lakes office of the justice department's anti-trust division, said the trial will be held in Cleveland, but the date has not been set.

The indictment charged that since 1952 the defendants have boycotted non-member managers, dissident members and promoters disapproved by the international or its affiliates.

The guild group also was accused of boycotting professional boxing shows. Guild activities caused cancellation of such a show televised by station WEWS of Cleveland, from April to October, 1955, the indictment charged.

Del Monte admitted the Ohio guild had picketed WEWS, but said "we never tried to stop the fighters who appeared on those shows from fighting anywhere."

He said the Ohio guild voted "something like 45-1" not to participate in the studio bouts, with Del Monte said.

the understanding that if any manager did participate he would be expelled.

PROMOTERS GOT MONEY
Asked what was the guild's objection to the studio bouts, Del Monte said:

"The promoters were making all the money. When TV first started in Madison Square Garden they were giving fighters a percentage of the gate and about $250 from TV money. The promoters were getting $17,000 or $18,000 from TV."

"We formed the guild and now any main event fighter on TV on Wednesday or Friday night is guaranteed $4,000 and on Monday night he gets about $2,500."

He said the promoters had approached him and the Ohio guild's vice-president, Pat Yates, offering to "take good care" of them if they withdrew from the guild and went along with the studio bout set up.

"I told them I wouldn't think of doing anything like that," Del Monte said.

City Grant To Chamber Considered

No New Industry
Mayor Observes

Chamber of Commerce will be asked to send representatives to an early meeting of the finance committee of city council to outline the work of its industrial development bureau.

The invitation arose from a request to council by the chamber for a grant in aid of its industrial development work which was considered at a meeting of the finance committee Tuesday.

"Are they aggressive enough?" asked Mayor Percy Scurrell. "There have been no new industries in the last year. Do they ever write to people or only when they show interest? They did excellent work on freight rates."

The request was tabled. Previous grant was close to $2,000.

The committee passed for council ratification a $2,796,150 interim budget which will finance civic operations until the 1936 budget is passed in May.

The question of replacing present bicycle licences with a system of permanent registration, moved in council by Ald. M. H. Mooney last week, was referred by the committee to police commission. The committee felt police opinion and a financial statement should be studied before any recommendation on the matter was made to council.

Greater Victoria Association for Retarded Children asked the city for classroom space in the now abandoned Kingston Street School. The committee suggested that the school board should be approached inasmuch as the old school is in process of being transferred to the province for demolition. The site is expected to be used for a new government laboratory.

T. P. O'Grady, who will take over city's legal work Feb. 1, wrote the committee to ask the 1936 council ratify the contract drawn between his firm and the 1935 council. The mayor, city solicitor and city manager will go over the contract before the enabling by-law is drafted.

Murder Case Appeal Off For 2 Months

The B.C. Court of Appeal Tuesday postponed for two months the appeal of a convicted murderer in order to give him time to prepare his last legal fight for his life.

The postponement was granted after Crown Counsel A. L. Pearson informed the court that Robert Graham, 24-year-old miner, had no money to prepare his appeal against his murder conviction scheduled to be heard in Victoria this month.

Mr. Pearson said the Attorney-General's Department would provide the funds to assist Graham prepare his appeal. This was the department's usual practice for such cases, he said.

Graham, a husky miner, was sentenced to be hanged in Vancouver for kicking to death William Holman in a street brawl near Kitsilano Beach on August 21.

The winter session of the Appeal Court was opened by a full court of six justices. Sitting on the bench were Chief Justice Gordon McG. Sloan, chairman; Justices C. H. O'Halloran, Sidney A. Smith, H. I. Bird, James M. Coady, H. W. Davey and F. H. Shepherd.

A total of 41 criminal cases and over 30 civil appeals were listed for hearing before the court which will sit here throughout January and February.

Some of the appeals were transferred to the Appeal Court division in Vancouver.

YOUR CHILD MAY HAVE PIN-WORMS 1 OUT OF 3 DOES!

Fidgeting, nose-picking and a tormenting rectal itch are often tell-tale signs of Pin-Worms... ugly parasites that medical experts say infect one out of every three persons examined. Entire families may be victims and not know it.

To get rid of Pin-Worms, these pests must not only be killed, but killed in the large intestine where they live and multiply. That's exactly what Jayne's P-W tablets do... and here's how they do it: First—a scientific coating carries the tablets into the bowels before they dissolve. Then—Jayne's modern, medically-approved ingredient goes right to work—kills Pin-Worms quickly and easily.

Don't take chances with this dangerous, highly contagious condition. Get genuine Jayne's P-W Vermifuge... small, easy-to-take tablets... special sizes for children and adults. Perfected by Dr. D. B. Jayne & Son, specialists in worm remedies for 100 years.

Hot-Rod Death Blame on Driver

Souped-Up Car Going
70 MPH, Inquest Told

The "hot-rod" in which 23-year-old John William Hitchin, 1955 Kings, received fatal injuries early last Sunday was travelling over 70 miles an hour while passing a carload of friends on a curve, witnesses said at an inquest today.

Jury members returned a verdict of culpable neglect after deliberating 14 minutes.

It was not determined who was the driver.

One of the car's three occupants, Phillip Joseph Fillion, 21, 1175 Yates, who received minor injuries in the wreck at Burnside and Marigold shortly before 2 a.m., told the inquest he remembered little of the accident.

Frank Richard Lapp, 20, 1325 Lang, who is in critical condition at St. Joseph's Hospital, was referred to as the driver at one point in the evidence. He owned the death vehicle.

Principal witnesses were three youths who had been at a nearby home with the accident victims just prior to the crash. They had been riding in a second car, and had been passed by the Lapp "hot-rod" just before it crashed.

Gordon Smith, 1837 Holland, said he was asked by Lapp how fast his car could go. "I told him I had a new motor" and could not drive it too fast.

"He said his car would really go," Smith said.

Saanich Const. Robin Stewart said the death car left the travelled portion of Burnside, struck a 12-inch culvert six feet from the road, went out of control, striking a power pole before turning over, flipping into the air, hitting a steel stanchion at a service station. It came to rest 103 feet from the point where it first left the road, but only five feet off the travelled portion.

Lapp was found behind a tree near the pole, Hitchin lying on the ground near the car's left side, and Fillion was on the ground on the other side of the car when police arrived.

REMOVED VICTIMS

Occupants of Smith's car had assisted in getting the victims from the wreckage.

Brian Wheldon, 28 Midwood, who sat in the back seat of Smith's car with Dale Gordon Creelman, 990 Lavender, at first said he had no idea how fast Lapp's car was travelling, admitting only it was "over 30 mph anyway."

Asked again, he said, "I figure he must have been going pretty close to 70."

Creelman testified: "I would say he was going 70-80 miles an hour. He was past us with a terrific rate of speed."

He said Lapp passed their car about 100 yards before the intersection of Marigold, then "seemed to lose control of the car, went broadside and hit the pole."

Creelman said Lapp was driver of the "hot-rod" when the cars left his home, and Hitchin was sitting between Lapp and Fillion.

Wheldon also used Lapp's name when referring to the hot-rod passing Smith's car.

Hitchin was dying when he was admitted to St. Joseph's. Dr. Henry Weiselaar said. He died a short time later of "a skull fracture."

DANGEROUS SPOT

Kenneth Kroeger, 870 Burnside, who had been driving from Victoria and nearly met the car crash head on, said he considered the curve "very definitely a dangerous place to pass."

Although the intersection is wide, vision is partly obscured. Width of the road at this point is 20 feet.

Coroner Dr. E. C. Hart asked Fillion to describe the accident.

"I don't remember much about the accident," he replied. "I don't remember much about all day Saturday."

"Were you injured?" "I got a bang on the head," Fillion said. His forehead bore the imprint of a gash and surgical stitches.

"Is there any reason you can think of for this loss of memory? Had you much to drink that night?" the coroner questioned.

SOME BEER

"We had a few bottles of beer," Fillion said.

"Do you remember being at the Creelman house? (before the accident)?"

"No, I don't remember being there."

A policeman asked: "Were you celebrating a birthday?"

"Uh-huh," said Fillion, nodding his head.

The jury was charged by the coroner to bring in a verdict of culpable neglect or manslaughter, since "under the present law an individual involved in a motor accident is responsible for his actions."

"The car undoubtedly was driven in a careless manner," Dr. Hart added.

"You will have to decide the degree of responsibility between culpable neglect or manslaughter," Dr. Hart said.

ASK THE TIMES

Q—I am a 10-year-old school girl and am interested in a pen pal in another country, such as New Zealand, Australia, or the British Isles. Will you please tell me how to get one?

A—Yes, Miss McI. This column is able to help. You may write to one or all of the following daily newspapers—either to the editor in each case or simply addressing the letter to the paper itself: The Sydney Sun, the Sydney Daily Telegraph, the Melbourne Herald, all three in Australia; the Christchurch Daily Press, the Auckland Star and the Dunedin Evening Star, all three in New Zealand; for papers in Great Britain your mother doubtless will name you several in large cities, perhaps the London Daily Mail, the Daily Sketch, the London Daily Mirror, the London Daily Express, the Edinburgh Scotsman, the Glasgow Herald.

NATIONAL TOUR

S. J. Willis Bandsmen Get Big Break

By AUDREY JOHNSON

If you see a student of S. J. Willis Junior High School looking for a job, please help him. Because he—or she—may be one of the 40 or so young musicians who have been picked for the honor of a place in the senior band.

Each of those youngsters is going to be looking extra hard for ways of making extra cash in the next few months.

It's because the band is contemplating a really thrilling project: probably the first such venture ever undertaken by a Victoria school band.

Led by their conductor, Howard Denike, the youngsters propose to make a cross-country junket next summer to take part in a national band festival in Waterloo, Ont.

And almost all members of the band have undertaken to provide the 100-odd dollars which will be each person's share of the cost.

So in the intervening months, two phases will occupy the extra-curricular hours of the enthusiastic junior bandsmen: Polishing and enlarging the musical repertoire—and making and saving every possible dollar.

SEE CANADA

Main idea behind the plan, in which Mr. Denike and principal B. C. Gillie are keenly co-operating, is to give the youngsters a chance to see Canada.

So the project involves a series of stopover concerts at various centres on the return journey, these to be Kiwanis-sponsored with proceeds to local charities.

But the immediate effect has been to raise musical interest to a new and all-time high.

"There is no difficulty in getting the kids to attend rehearsals now, no matter what the counter attraction," reports Mr. Denike.

In the meantime he and Mr. Gillie are busy devising ways and means and keeping their fingers crossed that no deserving young musician gets left behind because of a financial deficiency.

CKDA Channel 6 Bid To Be Heard Feb. 3

By PHIL LEE
Times TV Editor

David M. Armstrong, president of radio station CKDA, appeared to have won the first round today in what promises to be a hectic fight for control of Victoria television Channel 6.

Of the three probable applicants only Mr. Armstrong's application for a low-power television station is scheduled to be heard by CBC board of governors when they meet in Ottawa, Feb. 3, according to a Canadian Press Ottawa report.

The news came as a surprise as it was expected locally that the application of William Rea, owner of New Westminster radio station CKNW, would be considered by the board at the same time.

DELAY BID

Meanwhile, from Calgary, where he is meeting with station owners, William Guild, general manager of CJVI, said he was unable to state his station's stand on Channel 6 until after a final meeting scheduled for this afternoon.

It is expected that CJVI will request the CBC to hold up the hearings until it, too, can submit an application for a TV licence to operate Channel 6.

Mr. Rea, who has been studying TV photography at the Brooks Institute in Santa Barbara, Calif., could not be reached for comment; neither could his station manager in New Westminster, William Hughes.

Mr. Armstrong said he is preparing to go to Ottawa for the hearings. He will be accompanied by CKDA's legal adviser, James Proudfoot. They will leave at the end of the month.

SPORTSCAST

His presentation before the CBC board, Mr. Armstrong continued, will be mainly concerned with programming. Should he be successful in securing an application to operate a television station here he promised to do "everything I can" to accent local activities.

Although he admitted he didn't know whether it was possible or not, he said he would strive to get together with hockey and lacrosse officials to bring citizens at least part of the local contests.

In the autumn of 1955 an application for a high-power station by Mr. Armstrong was turned down by the CBC on the grounds that such a station would break a CBC ruling that a private TV station could not infringe upon an area serviced by the CBC.

Spraying Plane in Saanich Buzzes Houses, Hops Fences

Hundreds of people in rural Saanich today were thrilled by a plane which zoomed over house-tops, barely missed telephone lines, fence hopped, and flew only four feet off the ground in level areas.

The pilot, Les Kerr, of Skyway Air Service, Langley, B.C., was not stunting, but engaged in the serious business of spraying insecticide over hundreds of acres containing bulbs in Saanich and Central Saanich.

He was hired by G. A. Vantreight, Jr., and a few other bulb growers, to spray their bulb farms to kill insects and weeds which damage thousands of daffodils each year.

The pilot flying at a speed of 90 miles an hour and four feet above the ground, sprayed 100 gallons of insecticide in exactly 61 seconds. About ten one-acre fields were completely sprayed in a matter of seconds.

The spraying project provided people with a spectacular aerial show. The pilot at times had to dodge fences or quickly climb over houses. He missed telephone wires by two or three feet.

Mr. Vantreight believes it is the first time that spraying had been carried out by a plane on Vancouver Island.

ACK-ACK GIRLS ON 'SHOPPING' SPREE

Shopping for uniforms in quarter-master stores at Work Point, Barbara Collington, 15, 1749 Davie, and Sandra Kilgour, 15, 2320 Lee, are the first girls to join Victoria's 4 Light Anti-Aircraft Battery Army Cadet Corps. Girl cadets will be used mostly in orderly room clerical duties. (Times photo.)

Edgelow Heads Celebrations Association

Ald. Geoffrey I. Edgelow was elected 1956 chairman of Greater Victoria Celebrations Association Tuesday night.

He takes over from city clerk M. F. Hunter who declined to stand again for office after five years' service in that post.

Mayor Percy Scutrah was named honorary chairman and Mr. Hunter-honorary vice-chairman. Magistrate A. L. Thomas is vice-chairman.

Capt. Norman Foster, last year's secretary, accepted the post of treasurer but would not stand for the post of secretary which he held last year. That vacancy will be filled at the next meeting, Jan. 24. Capt. Foster has been treasurer for 12 years.

Directors are C. L. Wright (BPOE), R. D. MacLachlin, Cecil Holt (Eagles), Cmdr. W. H. Willson (RCN), W. H. Wootton.

Sub-committee on finance is comprised of Ald. Edgelow, Ald. A. I. Curtis, Oak Bay Councillor J. V. Johnson, Saanich Councillor T. J. O'Neill and Esquimalt Councillor J. E. Carey.

Second Fire at Macdonald's Warehouse

Temporary offices for Macdonald Consolidated Ltd. opened today and company officials were seeking new storage space following a $200,000 fire Tuesday at their warehouse at 362 Herald.

The three-alarm fire which broke out during noon lunch hour and raged out of control for about an hour gutted the fourth storey of the warehouse. Stock on the third floor also was damaged by fire. Water damage was heavy throughout the building.

Firemen rushed to the scene again shortly after 10 a.m. today when an outbreak of fire on the fourth floor was noticed by an on-duty fireman at the scene.

It was quickly extinguished. Company manager John Hardy said it appeared as if supplies stored on the fourth floor were a total loss.

He said the company is seeking a temporary warehouse until the damaged building can be repaired.

Temporary offices opened in the old J. H. Todd warehouse on Wharf Street this morning.

Mr. Hardy said there will be no shortage of supplies.

The company is suppliers for Safeway and independent grocery stores.

BETWEEN TIMES

By MONTE ROBERTS

Genius is at its best when it rises to a challenge. Take the genius of Mr. Anthony Dickason, the well-known man-about-Times. Mr. Dickason customarily conceals his genius behind a facade of modesty. But, when challenged, the product of his genius is rare and beautiful, e.g., the about-to-be-famous Ode to Libocedrus Decurrens.

He would never have written this extraordinary epic had it not been for a challenge issued by Mr. Norman Pringle, the silver-haired sage of CKDA.

Mr. Pringle challenged The Times to produce a lyricist who could write a song honoring the worlds tallest totem. Mr. Pringle said if such a song were written, he would render it on CKDA.

Mr. Dickason rose quickly to this challenge, with the following result:

ODE TO LIBOCEDRUS DECURRENS

Oh they cut down the old cedar
And they hauled it away down the hill
To make a totem sublime
For that old town of mine
Oh they cut down the old cedar.
Oh they cut down the old cedar
And they'll slice it up with an adz
So soon you can stare
At a totem—most rare
Oh they cut down the old cedar.
Oh they cut down the old cedar
And they hauled it away to the shed
Where the Martins will chip
With but seldom a slip
Oh they cut down the old cedar.
Oh they cut down the old cedar
(I could hear the crash from the bar)
And it's sure to become
The biggest tot (u)m
Oh they cut down the old cedar.
Oh they cut down the old cedar
To become a totem sans par
The tallest the best
In east or west
Oh they cut down the old cedar.

There you are, Mr. Pringle. Take it away.
Far, far away....

Three local high school students have won awards in the ninth annual pulp and paper industry essay contest and will receive prizes this week.

They are Jacqueline A. Nichols, 14, grade nine pupil at Lansdowne Junior High who captured first place in zone five; Sharon J. Whellans, 14, grade nine, Central Junior High, won third place in the same class; and Rodney O. Brannan, 17, grade 12 pupil at Royal Oak Junior-Senior High who captured third place in the zone five senior class. Subject, which had 7,330 student entries in B.C., was "How We Depend on Paper."

Two cyclists and a pedestrian received minor injuries in overnight accidents.

Seven-year-old Christina Smith, 118 Dallas, suffered head abrasions when knocked from her bicycle by a delivery truck at Menzies and Niagara at about 8:50 p.m.

Samuel Beatty, 74, 232 Rose, received head cuts and a lacerated left hand when his bicycle was in collision with a truck driven by Angus Plachner, 418 Vancouver, at Johnson and Alston at about 11:30. Hector Renton suffered a left shoulder and leg injuries when knocked down by a car while walking on Esquimalt Road near Canterbury Road.

The holed freighter Walvis Bay will be drydocked Friday morning by Victoria Machinery Depot, for repairs to a 20-foot gash and three large holes on the port side, forward. The ship was damaged near Tahsis when she brushed a reef. Repairs will cost an estimated $50,000, and will take 10 days or more. About 40 men will be employed on the job.

The annual meeting of the naval maritime museum will be held at 2:30 p.m. Thursday in the HMCS Naden Education School Building.

Victoria's famous blue folder, "Follow the Birds," is being produced in natural color for the first time.

It will carry 13 magnificent transparencies showing Vancouver Island scenes as they really are.

"We are very proud of it," says commissioner George I. Warren, head of Victoria and Island Publicity Bureau. "It is the first time in 60 years the bureau has been functioning that we have been able to do this."

Former lieutenant governor Clarence Wallace today sent a telegram marking the first anniversary of Gorge Road Hospital to authorities there. It read:

"We have very happy memories of the pleasant duties performed a year ago today when we opened the Gorge Road Hospital. I congratulate you on all you have accomplished. I wish the patients every happiness in their beautiful surroundings and the hospital continued success."

The hospital was scheduled to hold open house today between 2 and 4:30 p.m.

Walter Holloway, Saanich berry farmer who was found dead on his farm last November 7, left an estate of $85,000, according to a petition for administration filed in Supreme Court Tuesday. Mr. Holloway died intestate.

First shoot of 1956 between local cadet corps Monday was won by the 89th Royal Canadian Air Cadets with a score of 379, outpointing the Canadian Scottish Cadets by three points.

Rainbow Sea Cadets scored 343 while the 4th LAA Cadets scored 341.

TOTEM RAW MATERIAL ARRIVES IN LONELY SPLENDOR

The cedar log from which the world's tallest totem will be carved ended a 40-mile water voyage Tuesday afternoon, under tow to the Island Tug and Barge tug Island Rover. Log is now "berthed" at Island Tug dock, will be moved to the causeway by Island Comet, where Heaney Cartage and Storage will tackle job of getting it ashore and moving it to Thunderbird Park. (Times photo.)

SHOPPING GUIDE

Brush-Type Rope Door Mats Are Chosen by Many Buyers

By PENNY SAVER

When visitors come to your door, just what do they see? Put yourself in an objective position and take a good look at the front porch. Like most people, you've probably grown used to the look of it, and rarely really give it an appraising glance. How about the door mat, does it look as if it had been through the war? If so, maybe it's time you broke down and bought a new one. This seems to be one of the things that gets put off and put off, but it will improve the appearance of your porch 100 per cent, so take a look at the interesting ones I found. Yes, even a door mat can be interesting!

Rope seems to be a favorite type of material for these door mats. Twisted rope forms the backing, and the frayed, brush-like finish is used for the upper part. Aztec designs centring and marking corners add a colorful note to the mats. They're $3.95.

Attractiveness and practicality are combined in the open-work rope mats that are selling for $1.95. The mud and dirt from shoes doesn't grind right into the mat, but falls through the open-work, so that a sweep and a shake of the mat and everything's tidy again.

Plain brush-type rope mats, in different thicknesses, cost $1.95 and $2.25. For front- or back door, they'll help to keep your floors cleaner longer.

Colored brush mats are a mass of green, red and blue flecks. Very colorful, they'll blend with any color porch. The dominant colors vary, so take your pick, they're $2.50 each.

Many people prefer the rubber weave mats that are reinforced with metal rods. These will certainly withstand the pounding and rough use of men's shoes and boots. They're in black, and a spraying with the hose or a good brushing will easily keep 'em clean. The price is either $1.49 or $2.95, depending on the size.

On completely a different subject, let me tell you about the serving plate handles that are on sale at a reduced price in town. They're either chrome or black wrought iron, to suit your taste and plates. A slight spring action makes them adaptable to medium and large sized plates. Serving is made easier, and more attractive, too, when pretty serving plates are used. Even the plainest of serving dishes will take on a new look when a shiny or dramatic toned handle is added. They're selling at 59 cents each.

Call me at 2-3131 for the names of stores where items may be bought.

TODAY'S RECIPE

TROPICAL LEMON COCONUT REFRIGERATOR DESSERT

Ingredients: Three cups milk, ½ cup uncooked white rice, ¼ cup butter or margarine, 1 cup moist shredded coconut, 1½ cups vanilla wafer crumbs, ¼ cup beet or cane sugar, ½ cup lemon juice, 1½ teaspoons grated lemon rind.

Method: Put the milk and rice in a 2-quart saucepan. Place over a high heat. Stir well. When bubbles appear around the edges of the saucepan, stir well. Turn the heat as low as possible. Cover and leave over this low heat 40 minutes or until the milk cooks into the rice.

While the rice cooks, melt the butter or margarine in a saucepan. Add the coconut and cook until golden brown, stirring frequently. Add the wafer crumbs and mix well. Press half of this mixture into the bottom of a well greased 10" x 6" x 2" pan. After the rice cooks, stir in the sugar, lemon juice and lemon rind. Pour mixture over the coconut-wafer crust. Top with the rest of the coconut-wafer mixture. Cool, then cover and chill in the refrigerator at least 3 hours before serving. To serve cut into squares. This recipe makes 8 servings.

Bringing Up Baby

Hints Collected by Mrs. Ben Barker (Mother of 5)

Recommended as a possible New Year's resolution: "Wherever my baby is concerned, I shall try to let the happy side of my heart show. I shall learn to curb frowns and cultivate smiles. I shall try my best to bring tenderness (instead of a let's-get-it-over-with attitude) to every baby task." It really takes so little effort to make baby thrive... make you extra-glad to be alive.

No cause for alarm if baby's appetite tapers off when he's near a year old. In proportion, he's not growing as fast, so a slight decrease in intake (plus a natural variation in the desire for food) is to be expected. Letting baby eat, instead of making him eat, helps. Imaginative mealtime planning will often coax back a reluctant appetite. Most important, baby will take food when he's hungry enough.

Tip for a teether. If baby's finding teething on the troublesome side, he'll get real comfort from Gerber Teething Biscuits. That's because they're smooth-surfaced for soothing relief...extra-hard for excellent biting satisfaction. Made of enriched cereal, pleasantly flavored, they're specially shaped for easy grasping. Individually wrapped in cellophane so you can pop 'em in pocket or purse for visiting purposes.

Clothing cue. Best bets in baby wrappers are those which open fore or aft. Babies distinctly do not like things pulled over their little heads.

Mealtime surprise. Lipsmacking is almost certain when you serve Gerber Fruit Dessert. For this is a happily balanced blend of sun-ripened apricots, mild pineapple juice and delicate orange juice—skillfully textured with a touch of tapioca for just about the nicest dessert imaginable. Strained or Junior. Gerber-Ogilvie Baby Foods Limited, Niagara Falls, Canada.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Here is a Marathon exercise which will take inches off the waist and tone up your muscles. From this position drag hands up leg as you raise trunk and pull back to right.

As you know, it's a marathon for the eight-week marathon. Here is one that will help tone up your muscles and take inches off the waist:

Stand erect, feet separated. Bend left as you push fingertips of both hands down left leg as close to ankle as possible. Drag hands up leg as you raise trunk and pull back to right. Continue bending and pulling back. Pull in opposite direction is important. Now bend to right and drag hands up and down right leg.

Start by doing this exercise about five times the first day and then gradually work up to 25 or 30 times a day. I will give you another exercise or two as we proceed with the marathon.

If you want to join the marathon and would like the complete marathon instructions in a handy booklet including a calorie chart, diet instructions, seven exercises for specific needs, beauty hints, personality help and a chart for recording your progress, send 10 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for it to Josephine Lowman in care of this newspaper.

Nine-Year Courtship Has Widow in a 'Tough Spot'

By ELIZABETH B. HURLOCK, PhD

When a man goes with a woman for nine years and doesn't ask her to marry him, she must accept the fact that he has no intentions of doing so and act accordingly.

(Q)—"I have been a widow for 11 years and all my children are married. For the past nine years, I have been going with a widower whose children are all married but one daughter who has a very good job in another state. I love this man very dearly and he tells me he loves me. But, he says he can't marry me because he promised his wife before she died that he wouldn't marry again and also, he feels he shouldn't marry unless his 'old-maid daughter' finds herself a husband. I told him this has put me in a tough spot because my children and my friends think it strange that we aren't married after keeping company for so many years. He tells me I am selfish to want him to break his promise to his dead wife and leave his daughter without anyone to fall back on. I can't understand his reasoning, can you?"—J. McC.

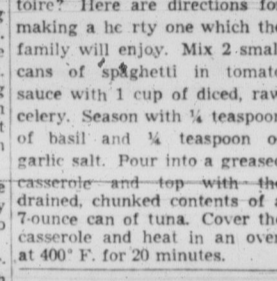

(A)—I don't think you can call this "reasoning" but rather "rationalization," or trying to find a plausible excuse when put into a difficult position. For some reason, whether devoted to his daughter or a feeling of obligation to keep the deathbed promise to his wife, this man does not want to marry again. But, he wants your love and companionship.

If this is not enough for you, call it a day and let him have his daughter as his companion instead of you. You are not obligated to continue the friendship if it puts you in an embarrassing position with your children and friends.

When people reach middle age, a courtship of nine years is much too long. It is a pity that you did not bring the matter to a head long ago and discover just where you stood. Had you known, long ago, that he felt he could not marry you, or had you known about his deathbed promise to his wife, you could have ended the friendship before it went so far as to put you in a "tough spot."

New Casserole Dish

Looking for a new casserole dish to add to your repertoire? Here are directions for making a hearty one which the family will enjoy. Mix 2 small cans of spaghetti in tomato sauce with 1 cup of diced, raw celery. Season with ¼ teaspoon of basil and ¼ teaspoon of garlic salt. Pour into a greased casserole and top with the drained, chunked contents of a 7-ounce can of tuna. Cover the casserole and heat in an oven at 400° F. for 20 minutes.

Fashion Designers Show Two Extremes for Spring

NEW YORK (AP)—Ladies will look ladylike this spring, whether in slim daytime sheath dresses that fit them like the paper on the wall, or in floating clouds of chiffon after dark.

There are two extremes in the new fashions for spring, as shown this week to some 200 visiting fashion editors. One is the straight, narrow, understated column silhouette. The other is the strictly feminine, often full-skirted, always flattering cocktail or evening gown.

Buxane, designing for Samuel Winston, revives a gentle and nostalgic fashion in her pleated chiffon short formal dresses. An outstanding example is a dress of gossamer-thin black silk chiffon, its full skirt using yards and yards of fine pleats, its bodice smoothly fitted with neckline scooped to the back, with a waist-length cape of the same pleated chiffon tied at the neck with narrow silk shoe strings.

Karen Stark, designing for Women's Parish Guild, Christ Church Cathedral, annual meeting, Friday, 2 p.m. Dean Brian Whitlow will preside. Liberal Women's Forum, headquarters, 1322A Government street, 2 p.m. Guest speaker: Forrest Shaw.

Sanctuary Building Fund, Missions Receive Aid From Church Guild

Annual meeting of The Guild, Church of St. George the Martyr, was held with Mrs. C. H. Rennie presiding. Reports were read by the retiring secretary, Mrs. E. J. Harwood, and by the treasurer, Mrs. G. M. Stewart, who showed an amount of $2,039.50 realized.

Mrs. Rennie in presenting her presidential report, remarked that nine cartons of clothing had been shipped to the mission at Fort St. John and $50 had been given to Camp Columbia. Main project of the Guild for 1955 had been supplying the altar and baldachin for the new sanctuary, in addition to which $911 had been given to the building fund. Further reports were given by Mrs. W. Garrard, corresponding secretary; Mrs. A. J. Marlow, mission work; Mrs. H. V. Hummel, sick visiting; Mrs. R. N. Hincks, "Challenging"; Mrs. I. M. Royle, teas; Mrs. R. W. Chard, Evening Branch; Mrs. T. H. Burns, publicity.

Auxiliary Supplies Linens for YMCA During Past Year

It was reported at annual meeting of the Ladies' Auxiliary to YMCA, that 76 sheets, 136 pillow slips, 21 bedspreads and 10 rugs were provided by the auxiliary for the YMCA during the past year. Two coffee parties, a spring tea and two rummage sales were held for fund-raising. One more rummage sale is planned for the spring.

New officers elected are: President, Mrs. H. L. Campbell; vice-president, Mrs. R. Dykes; secretary, Mrs. S. J. D. Clack; and treasurer, Mrs. J. Finlayson. During the evening, a film of YMCA activities abroad was shown.

Mrs. H. E. Geddes, in presenting her report on holly said that despite frost damage, larger shipments had been made than in any previous year and in this respect thanked the Holly Growers' Association for its cooperation.

The rector, Rev. W. Hills, presided at election of officers, subsequently installing the new executive in office. Mrs. C. H. Rennie was again elected president; Mrs. R. B. Howland, vice-president; Mrs. H. V. Hummel, secretary; Mrs. G. M. Stewart, treasurer, and Mrs. D. Rodgers, executive officer. Mrs. J. Taylor Lee was appointed in charge of teas.

Mrs. A. J. Marlow was named convener of the rummage sale which will take place in the Orange Hall, Courtenay street, in late February. The annual membership tea will be held in the Parish Hall on Feb. 8. At conclusion of the meeting tea was served by Mrs. H. E. Geddes and Mrs. D. Rodgers.

Tricky Ideas Add Elegance To Versatile Potatoes

Potatoes are not only one of the staple foods Canadians enjoy but also a delight to anyone who likes to cook. They can be combined with almost any food, taste as good as leftovers as they do when freshly cooked and just by themselves can be made to appear in an endless number of guises. They can be baked, fried, scalloped, creamed, boiled or mashed in the good old tradition, and can be made into soup, salad, pancakes, puddings, scones or bread. They can be used as toppings for meat pies and to stretch meat or fish in croquettes, fishcakes or hash. Yes, potatoes are versatile and essential in our Canadian diet and can do much to help satisfy hearty winter appetites.

The home economists of the Consumer Section, Canada Department of Agriculture, suggest that instead of serving baked potatoes with just a lump of butter inserted in the top, cut the cooked potatoes in half, sprinkle the cut sides with grated cheese and place them under the broiler until the cheese is melted and golden brown. Another idea is to remove a lengthwise piece from the centre of a washed raw potato — an apple corer may be used for this. Then stuff the hole with some cooked meat, a sausage or cheese, fill the ends with some of the potato you cored out and bake as usual.

School Crowd Made Easy Party Fun

Teach your children to enjoy simple parties in their own home. That way you won't have to wonder where they are. But be sure it's a party designed for fun.

Let your children help with the party arrangements, making suggestions for the party theme and decorations. An appropriate centerpiece could be a school lunch box set on leaves and filled with chrysanthemums.

Another classroom touch is a slate listing the menu. Also, let them help set the table and prepare the food. The secret, of course, is to keep the fare simple, easy to prepare and serve. A sandwich buffet fills the bill perfectly.

Here are three easy-to-make recipes which will add zest to the bill of fare:

MAYO-PATE
Eight thick slices liverwurst, 4 tablespoons mayonnaise, 2 packages cream cheese, 1/2 cup olives, salt and pepper.

In a mixing bowl dice olives and blend with liverwurst, mayonnaise and cream cheese, using a fork. Salt and pepper to taste.

BACON-PEANUT BUTTER SPREAD
Sixteen strips of bacon, 2 cups peanut butter, 4 tablespoons mayonnaise.

20 Victoria Daily Times WEDNESDAY, JAN. 11, 1956

Classroom touch is added to simple school-crowd party by using a slate to list the menu.

Fry bacon until crisp. Into mixing bowl, break bacon into small pieces. Add peanut butter and mayonnaise. Blend with fork.

Makes 10-12 sandwiches.

JUBILEE PUNCH
One and one-half cups bottled lemon juice, 3/4 cup orange juice, 1 1/2 cups sugar, 1 quart grape juice, 1 pint lime juice, 2 1/2 quarts cold water, 1 1/2 ounce bottle ginger-ale, mint leaves, ice.

Mix lemon and orange juices with sugar. Add lime and grape juices. Chill until time to serve. Add water, ginger ale and ice. Garnish with mint.

Institute

Conveners

Committee heads named at last meeting of Victoria Women's Institute include Mrs. B. Dawes, agriculture; Miss M. Bruce, Canadian Association of Consumers; Mrs. B. McEwen, home economics; Mrs. E. Berry, citizenship; Mrs. E. Farnthorpe, social welfare; Mrs. M. Bridge, drama group.

Mrs. McEwen presided and plans were made for a social meeting and court whist drive for members and friends on Friday at 2 p.m. in the YWCA. Refreshments will be served. Mrs. Dawes is in charge of arrangements.

Prima Ballerina Loves To Cook Hopes Some Day To Own Restaurant

TORONTO (CP)—Any housewives who envy the glamor of the entertainer's life may take heart. Their own kitchen may be envied from the stage.

Beryl Grey, one of Sadler's Wells prima ballerinas, says she may some day leave the stage for a little restaurant in the country. She loves to cook.

During her summer holidays from the ballet company she and her husband, Dr. Sven Swenson and their 18-month-old son, Ingvar, visit Sweden.

She loves its magnificent countryside, spends hours basking in the sun but, best of all, she has lots of time to cook.

FAVORITE RECIPES

Here are two of her favorite recipes:

Beef a la Lindstrom: 1 1/2 lbs. minced beef; 2 raw, medium-sized onions; 2 teaspoons capers and 2 medium beetroots finely chopped; 1 large cooked potato; 2 egg yolks; 1 egg white.

Mix together, add milk if necessary, shape as hamburgers and fry in butter. Serve with cranberries, saute potatoes and a mixed green salad with French dressing.

Swedish Stuffed Apples: Core and peel large apples. Roll in melted butter and then in bread crumbs. Fill centres with mixture of 3/4 cup ground almonds, 1/2 cup granulated sugar and either egg white or water. Put plenty of butter around the apples.

Bake in oven about 40 minutes, basting frequently.

If Miss Grey is to stay in top form for the stage her time in England must be spent exercising. She cannot dally as much as she would like with household duties.

The hours devoted to ballet, however, have paid off. She has won acclaim in Europe, Sweden and America for her Odette-Olle in "Swan Lake," her favorite role.

For the Sadler's Wells engagement in Toronto she danced the lady in Giuseppe Verdi's "The Lady and the Fool."

ask Andy

HE GIVES AWAY GRAND PRIZES

Is there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable books? Then ask Andy!

Andy, who is a pixie, not a person, will answer two questions daily submitted by child readers of Canada and the U.S. Children who submit the questions he selects to answer will receive as prizes, for the main question, either a 16-volume set of "The Children's Hour" or a 20-volume set of "The American People's Encyclopedia." Prizes for the secondary question will be an "American People's Encyclopedia Year Book" or a year's subscription to "Treasure Trails" plus "Andy's Everyday Encyclopedia."

Address your questions to "Ask Andy" Victoria Daily Times, Victoria.

Andy sends a complete 16-volume set of The Children's Hour to Bruce Barley, aged seven, of Wichita, Kansas, for his question:

Why Is the Dead Sea Called By That Name?

Evacuation Study Urged On CD Groups

Concentration of all Canadian civil defence organizations on the problem of survival evacuation is recommended by federal CD authorities. Greater Victoria volunteers were told Monday.

Speaker was Robert H. Abbott, chief instructor, who recently attended a survival study course at Canadian Civil Defence College, Amnrior.

He said for the present, all other CD functions on the national level have been slackened in favor of evacuation study.

WORKING ON PLAN

"We are endeavoring to draw up a plan for evacuation that can be placed before the proper authorities for study," Greater Victoria co-ordinator Roger Peachy said today.

Federal authorities believe their present policy is the only defence against modern nuclear weapons, and the directing staff of CD college strongly urge that target areas, at least, concentrate on the problem of evacuation.

All courses now offered by the college are designed with this view in mind.

R. A. Freeman, Langford warden, is presently attending a general instructor's course including warden training at CD College. It began Monday and runs to Jan. 20.

Sentence Thursday For Man Found In City House

Sentence will be imposed in city police court Thursday on Earl James McNaughton, Victoria, charged with being in a dwelling-house at 644 Cormorant on Dec. 27 with intent to commit theft.

He pleaded guilty to the charge today.

Detective Louis Callan testified he attended at Dover Apartments, 644 Cormorant, at about 8:10 p.m. on Dec. 27, where he saw the accused in company with another man.

The detective said he went to apartment 5 and found a bedroom window had been raised and a suitcase containing a radio was sitting on a table near the window.

He said McNaughton had a tin of canned meat which was taken from a cooler in his pocket. The accused had been drinking.

Occupants of the apartment were away at the time.

Defence counsel James Proudfoot asked that if a jail term is to be imposed that it allow for the accused to attend a clinic at Oakalla for treatment for an "alcoholic condition."

He said McNaughton had been steadily employed since released from penitentiary seven months ago.

BRIDGE LESSON

By Oswald Ja

In today's hand South is faced by a classic choice. Should he try to set up his own hand by developing clubs, or should he try to set up the dummy by running the hearts?

If South draws trumps, the choice will be taken out of control. Two rounds of trumps will leave declarer with only three trumps for dummy's four hearts. This will make it impossible for him to establish the dummy. Moreover, the opponents can make South ruff hearts often enough to prevent him from bringing in the long clubs. Thus both plans will fail.

South can make the contract by preserving both lines of play as long as possible. Eventually, the opponents will have to commit themselves, and then South can proceed with one plan or the other.

South ruffs the first round of hearts, cashes ace of clubs, and gives up a club. The defenders can afford to lead trumps; for then South will proceed establish his clubs. The best defense is to lead an heart, and South ruffs again. Declarer then gives the other club trick.

Once more the opponents have a problem to win there is no solution... If they lead trumps, South will bring in the clubs. If the defenders lead a third heart, South will ruff and will enter dummy with the ace of diamonds to ruff a fourth heart. After this, the opponents can take only their top trump, but South will make his contract.

Accused Man Says His Gold Came From Abandoned Mine

WINNIPEG (CP)—A man charged with illegal possession of more than $4,000 in gold says he came by it honestly, mining it and refining it with the help of two partners.

The refinery, he said, was a makeshift furnace heated by a flame thrower.

Trial of the man, Fernie Calverley, 54, of Bissett, Man., continues today.

He testified Tuesday that the gold came from "cleaning up" the abandoned Barry Hollinger mine near Boston Creek in northern Ontario. His testimony followed that of two crown witnesses who said their visit to the mine uncovered no equipment capable of producing the near-pure metal.

Calverley said he worked for more than a month at the mine in partnership with a brother and another man. He said quality of the gold—an assayer said it was 90 per cent pure—was achieved by using the makeshift furnace and the intense heat of the flame thrower.

The gold was processed into "buttons," he said, and buried in a sack until he left the area. He brought the buttons to Winnipeg and kept them in his hotel room. They were seized after an RCMP investigation last August.

Truck Curb Bid Repeated By Railmen

Ship-by-Rail Association officials again have urged restrictive measures against truck transport on the provincial government.

In a meeting with Highways Minister P. A. Gallagher and Public Works Minister W. N. Chant, the association pressed its requests for regulations to curb the speed of heavy trucks, for adequate scale facilities to check on overloading, and regulations against truck traffic using the highways "to the fullest possible extent" from midnight Saturday to midnight Sunday.

The association's brief presentation sought definite commitments from the government on various points raised in earlier submissions.

B.C. Man Chops Himself to Bits

NELSON, B.C. (BUP)—Fred Rezansoff, 47, committed suicide Tuesday by leaping into a Jumbo crushing machine at the Nelson plant of Kootenay Forest Products.

Police said the man left a note, his glasses and a purse beside the conveyor belt of the "hogger" machine which chops up planks for fuel. The remains were found in a bin when workers returned from a cigarette break.

Rezansoff, a trimmer at the mill, is survived by a wife and two children.

KNITTING KNOCKS KNOTS OUT OF JANGLED NERVES

ORONO, Me. (UP)—Knit or crochet if you want really to relax.

That's the advice of Harry Smith, 76-year-old retired farmer, who has been knitting for 70 years.

Smith believes that knitting and crocheting offer relaxation to both mind and body and are beneficial to health.

Smith knitted sweaters as Christmas presents for his five great-grandchildren.

Churchill Receives Medal As Tribute From Philadelphia

LONDON (UP)—Sir Winston Churchill, himself half-American, urged every young Englishman today to visit the United States "so they can see the field which their forefathers helped to open."

A note of confusion was injected when it was discovered that the key words showing the medal was from all the American people were omitted from the design by sculptor Sir Jacob Epstein, an American who became a British citizen.

The honor was bestowed because Churchill was chosen in a public opinion poll as the man who made the greatest contribution to international understanding in the past 10 years.

U.K. Charges Chiang Harbors Plane-Wrecker

LONDON (UP)—The British colonial office said today a Hong Kong airport employee sabotaged an Air India plane carrying Chinese Communist diplomats and newsmen to the Bandung conference last April.

The announcement said the man, identified as Chow Tse-Ming, alias Chou Chu, an employee of the Hong Kong Aircraft Engineering Corporation, escaped to Formosa even though he bragged of his work. It said that the Nationalists have refused to hand him over for trial.

"Evidence came to light to suggest that he had been procured by persons connected with a Kuomintang (the ruling Chinese Nationalist political party) intelligence organization and had been offered a reward," the colonial office said.

"There was also evidence that on four separate occasions subsequent to the crash that he had admitted his complicity."

But Chow vanished the very day suspicion fell on him, more than a month after the crash, the report said. He fled "some hours" before police called at his home.

Fifteen persons died in the crash when the Air India plane plunged into the sea on a flight from Hong Kong to Indonesia.

U.S. REJECTS PLEA TO END H-BOMB TESTS

WASHINGTON (UP)—Secretary of State John Foster Dulles today rejected suggestions by Russia and India that the United States suspend future H-bomb tests.

India's United Nations delegate, V. K. Krishna Menon, Tuesday appealed for the United States and Russia to ban experimental H-blasts. The United States has been reported planning to set off a super H-blast in the Pacific this year.

Recognize China Philpott Urges

OTTAWA (CP)—A Liberal member of Parliament urges that the government consider recognition of the Communist regime in China.

REVIEW ORDERED

Trial which brought Dr. Samuel H. Sheppard a life sentence in bludgeon death of his pregnant wife will be reviewed by Ohio Supreme Court. Today's decision does not free the Marion, Ohio, surgeon but it may win him a new chance to prove the innocence he claimed through-out his trial.

Rail Hearings Start Monday

MONTREAL (CP)—The three-man conciliation board appointed by the federal government to deal with a contract dispute between the railways and 150,000 non-operating employees, will begin hearings in Montreal next Monday, it was announced today.

Eric G. Taylor, chairman of the board, said the hearings to be held here and in Ottawa should take 10 days or two weeks.

Killed by Arabs

LONDON (AP)—The war office said today a British colonel was shot and killed by rioting Arabs during the weekend at Zarka, headquarters of the Arab Legion in Jordan.

The dead Briton was identified as Lt. Col. Patrick Lloyd, 42, commanding the 4th Light Anti-Aircraft Regiment.

4-MAN BOARD TO RULE IDUSTRY

Quebec 'Conscripts' Newsprint; Duplessis Orders Stiff Controls

QUEBEC (CP)—Canada's biggest industry—newsprint manufacturing—is to come under government control in Quebec for defying Premier Duplessis, it was announced Tuesday night.

Quebec newsprint manufacturers, 55 mills in all and producing more than half Canada's total newsprint output, are to be placed under the control of a four-man board with vast powers over production, distribution and sale of newsprint.

The reason is their silent refusal to comply with Premier Duplessis's request Dec. 13 last that they exempt Quebec newspapers publishers from recent newsprint price increases of 34 a ton.

Mr. Duplessis announced in a press conference during the legislative assembly's supper adjournment that he is going ahead with his plans to put the companies under provincial control no matter what they now decide.

FIXED UNTIL 1957

The law would stipulate that the newsprint price be fixed at the September, 1955, level until a date, still undetermined, in 1957.

Totem Lift Poses Ticklish Problem

Experts are wracking their brains today on the next phase of "operation tallest totem."

It is the ticklish job of lifting the nine-ton cedar tree out of the Inner Harbor, over the Causeway and transporting it to the Thunderbird Park carving shed.

This will be done within the next two or three days. The time will be fixed to conform with traffic and other civic arrangements.

The job has been undertaken by Healey (Big or Teeny) Carriage and Storage Company. And in the words of the firm's head, William Healey, it comes under the classification "big."

It will be at least a four-hour job, according to preliminary estimates.

City authorities today gave full co-operation in ensuring the success of the difficult lift.

Polio Victim Loses 3-Day Fight for Life

NELSON (CP)—A three-day struggle for the life of a 25-year-old expectant mother was lost here today when she succumbed to bulbar polio.

Mrs. Doreen Herrick, 25, of Kaslo, died at 7:17 a.m., a few hours before an RCAF mercy flight was to take her to Vancouver.

CHILD FIRE DEATHS HIT 28 IN 10 WEEKS

OTTAWA (CP)—Five children died today in a fire which swept through a two-storey frame home in the capital's west end.

The dead: Margaret, 7; Barbara Jean, 4; Garry, 3; Sharon, 17 months, and Wayne, six weeks. Children of Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Roud of Northwestern ave.

The mother and Frank, 5, escaped and were taken to hospital for treatment for shock and burns. The father was at work when the fire broke out.

The tragedy raises to 28 the number of persons who have died in fires in the Ottawa district since Nov. 1, 20 of them children.

Better Tax Deal Offered by PM

Bigger Share for Provinces In Corporation Tax Field

OTTAWA (CP)—The federal government has yielded slightly to the provinces, agreeing to hand over a bigger share of the corporation tax field under a proposed new five-year tax-sharing formula to replace current tax rental agreements.

Terms of the formula, already in the hands of the provinces, were disclosed today by Prime Minister St. Laurent when he tabled in the Commons copies of letters he sent to the premiers Jan. 6.

The formula is virtually unchanged from that originally suggested at the Oct. 3 federal-provincial conference with the exception of the corporation tax allowance. In that case the deduction allowable on federal payments will increase to nine from 8½ percent of a corporation's taxable income.

In other cases the federal deductions allowable where provinces return to the direct tax field will be 10 per cent of the federal tax on personal incomes—excluding the two per cent old age security tax—and 50 per cent of the federal duty on successions.

The formula, designed as an alternative to the current federal-provincial tax rental pacts which expire in March, 1957, are linked to federal equalization payments to the less wealthy provinces.

There will be no strings attached to these equalization payments. They will go to all provinces.

They will be based on the difference between direct tax yields in each province on a size of the per capita yields in the two wealthiest provinces—Ontario and British Columbia.

"These equalization payments would be paid during each fiscal year commencing April 1, 1957, and would be calculated on the basis of the tax and population figures for the preceding taxation year," Mr. St. Laurent said in his letter.

MP Accused Of Bribery

OTTAWA (CP)—Fred L. Prickett, unsuccessful Independent Social Credit candidate in last September's federal by-election in Retsigouche-Madawaska, has accused the Progressive Conservative leader, J. C. Van Horne, of bribing a voter with a drink.

Mr. Van Horne, who took his seat Tuesday in the Commons, denied the charge.

The accusation is contained in a letter written by Mr. Prickett to chief electoral officer Nelson J. Castonguay. The letter was tabled in the Commons by Speaker Rene Beaudoin.

Mr. Prickett's letter accused Mr. Van Horne of giving a drink to a voter outside a polling station on the morning of the by-election. He said this was contrary to the Canada Elections Act.

Four Safe, Unhurt When Craft Downed On West Coast

Four men rescued when their Pacific Western Airlines plane flipped over on an island 160 miles northwest of here after being missing a day were reported "in excellent physical shape" by a PWA spokesman in Vancouver today.

The plane, a Cessna 180, was sighted upside down shortly after 10 a.m. It had been missing since Tuesday on a 130-mile flight from Port Alberni to Gold River.

Aboard were Capt. Jim Lightbown of Vancouver, pilot, William Craig, 46, and Charles Rowlands of Vancouver, and Gene Olson, 42, of Seattle.

Cause of the accident is not yet known, the company spokesman told The Times. Necessary salvage steps will be taken to bring out the wrecked plane.

The foursome was taken first to Zeballos, and from there left for Vancouver at noon today aboard another PWA plane.

It was first feared the plane was down with possible loss of life.

FLIPPED OVER

The plane flipped over on Bligh Island at the entrance to Murchat Sound on Vancouver Island's rugged west coast.

A B.C. Air Lines and three PWA planes searched the area early today while another 10 planes stood by.

"She was down in the area we thought they most probably would have crashed," a search and rescue officer said.

The Cessna, chartered at Port Alberni by Dietrich-Collins, Ltd., equipment firm, was found before heavy clouds and rain blanketed the coast.

A land search party had also started out from Port Alberni to aid in the search through heavily wooded country.

Mr. Olson, aboard the plane, is a nephew of city businessman H. B. Barney Olson and R. S. Olson. He is service manager for the Pacific Northwest and B.C. of the Lima Steam Shovel Co. and has been a frequent visitor to Victoria.

1,000 Flee Nova Scotia Flood Areas

HALIFAX (CP)—More than 1,000 were homeless today as flooding Nova Scotia rivers rolled on to the sea with ever-growing destruction.

Property damage mounted hourly. It was in the tens of millions after a week of melting snow, rain, sleet and gales.

Floodwaters dropped a little in the province's central and eastern counties. But they continued to rise alarmingly along the southern shore.

Another 300 persons fled their homes Tuesday after a three-inch rainfall sent the waters higher still, bursting a score of dams.

Residents of the new Germany Pinehurst area of Lunenburg county today anxiously watched the Sherbrooke dam on the LaHave river where water was pouring 12 inches over the top and through a fault in the west end.

Authorities said persons living within a 10-mile area below the dam would be endangered should it give way and send a 30-foot wall of water crashing through the river valley as far as Bridgewater.

Shackleton's Antarctic Camp Still Intact

ROSS ISLAND, Antarctica (AP)

The base camp used by Ernest Shackleton, the first man to come to the South Pole, still stands here at the foot of Mount Erebus, on a little hollowed-out shelf over the frozen ice of McMurdo Sound.

It is 47 years since Shackleton made his gallant attempt. Forced to turn back 85 miles short of his goal, he and his parties did not leave the Antarctic.

Looking over his camp almost half a century later gives one the sensation of a macabre movie that has stopped suddenly, with all action and life frozen in the last motion.

The wooden hut, about 40 by 20 feet, has whitened over the years, but is still in good condition. Cables criss-crossing over its peak anchor it against the violent Antarctic winds. It stands on a slight rise overlooking a saucer-shaped area.

In the centre of the saucer is a small pond, unfrozen since it is well protected. Black volcanic ash where nothing ever grew rings it

Behind the hut rises an overwhelming white pyramid all the way up to 13,000 feet—the only active volcano in the Antarctic.

Scattered around the huts are cans, boxes and other foodstuffs for man and beast. Those that are unopened are still edible. Some are marked "British Antarctic expedition 1908."

It was on that first expedition that Shackleton jumped off from here for the pole, using Manchurian drag sledges along the 800-mile trail. The heavy leather straps which the ponies were once held still lie on the volcanic ash.

Inside the hut are three sections—a large general sleeping and cooking area, a private room for the leader and a photographer's darkroom.

Crates of fruit in jars make the darkroom wall. A canvas curtain sets off the kitchen. All but one window is intact.

In the darkroom are a few photographic plates. Wrapped in paper on the floor is a well preserved three-foot king penguin. Hanging on metal hooks from the ceiling are a ham and a side of bacon—not well preserved.

Also about are 1917 copies of "Punch," several pairs of sharp-pointed boots and boxes of candles marked "for tropical use." Over all hangs the silence of the Antarctic, broken only by squawking from a small penguin rookery at the seaside. Overhead the ugly skuas wait like vultures to pounce on the penguins.

PRAYER FOR TODAY

OUR GOD, forgive our pride in virtues easily achieved, as when companionship with a joyful father endowed us unconsciously with a love for work. Pardon our avoidance of virtues hard to gain, such as a patient understanding of why others sin. Empower us to leave partial goodness behind so as to press forward to the greater ahead; through Christ. Amen.

Private Bill Asks China Recognition

OTTAWA (CP)—A Liberal member of Parliament urged that the government consider recognition of the Communist regime in China.

STATEMENT RECALLED

The most recent statement on recognition of Red China by a member of the government was made last month by External Affairs Minister Pearson in an article in Look, American weekly magazine. He said: "We should recognize the fact that the Peiping government, and not Chiang Kai-shek, is in control of continental China and likely to remain so; that there are basic problems to be settled in the Far East which cannot be settled without the participation and agreement of that government."

Four Swim Ashore When Craft Downed On West Coast

Four men rescued when their Pacific Western Airlines plane flipped over on an island 160 miles northwest of here after being missing a day were reported "in excellent physical shape" by a PWA spokesman in Vancouver today.

The plane, a Cessna 180, was sighted upside down shortly after 10 a.m. It had been missing since Tuesday on a 130-mile flight from Port Alberni to Gold River.

The men were forced to swim ashore in freezing waters.

Aboard were Capt. Jim Lightbown of Vancouver, pilot, William Craig, 46, and Charles Rowlands of Vancouver, and Gene Olson, 42, of Seattle.

Cause of the accident is not yet known, the company spokesman told The Times. Necessary salvage steps will be taken to bring out the wrecked plane.

The foursome was taken first to Zeballos, and from there left for Vancouver at noon today aboard another PWA plane.

It was first feared the plane was down with possible loss of life.

1,000 Flee Nova Scotia Flood Areas

HALIFAX (CP)—More than 1,000 were homeless today as flooding Nova Scotia rivers rolled on to the sea with ever-growing destruction.

Property damage mounted hourly. It was in the tens of millions after a week of melting snow, rain, sleet and gales.

Floodwaters dropped a little in the province's central and eastern counties. But they continued to rise alarmingly along the southern shore.

Another 300 persons fled their homes Tuesday after a three-inch rainfall sent the waters higher, still, bursting a score of dams.

Residents of the new Germany Pinehurst area of Lunenburg county today anxiously watched the Sherbrooke dam on the Lahave river where water was pouring 12 inches over the top and through a fault in the west end.

Authorities said persons living within a 10-mile area below the dam would be endangered should it give way and send a 30-foot wall of water crashing through the river valley as far as Bridgewater.

4-MAN BOARD TO RULE INDUSTRY

Quebec 'Conscripts' Newspapers; Duplessis Orders Stiff Controls

Quebec newspaper manufacturers, 55 in all and producing more than half Canada's total newspaper output, are to be placed under the control of a four-man board with vast powers over production, distribution and sale of newspapers.

The reason is their silent refusal to comply with Premier Duplessis' request Dec. 13 last that they exempt Quebec newspapers publishers from recent newspaper price increases of $4 a ton.

Mr. Duplessis announced in a press conference during the legislative assembly's supper adjournment that he is going ahead with his plans to put the companies' under provincial control no matter what they now decide.

The law would stipulate that the newspaper price be fixed at the September, 1955, level until a date, still undetermined, in 1957. Quebec publishers have been paying between $117 and $119 a ton for newspaper since 1952 under an arrangement worked out at that time by Mr. Duplessis and the manufacturers.

Moreover, Mr. Duplessis said, compliance with the new law will be an indispensable condition to the companies' right to hold government leases on Quebec's crown forests.

Most of the newspaper produced in Quebec comes from pulpwood cut in publicly-owned forests.

Penalties will range from $25,000 for first offences to $50,000 and $100,000 for any subsequent infraction of any regulation in the control law, the premier said.
